GAMBLING AIRED IN
COUNCILMayor Gordon Defends Police
In Lengthy Discussion
Of Pay Boost Bid

Defending the police department against charges of lax law enforcement Mayor Ben H. Gordon told members of the city council in session Tuesday night that "as to gambling, Circleville is cleaner than any town in this area."

Renewing his attack, first made at the Jan. 7 meeting when he charged police with failure to curb gambling and failure to enforce traffic regulations, Councilman George L. Crites declared at Tuesday night's session that two police officers — not named — informed him that Police Chief William F. McCrady warned them that he would suspend them if they raided a downtown gambling place.

Following lengthy discussion of the police department and law enforcement the five members of council present at the meeting voted unanimously to refer the matter to the safety committee. That committee is composed of Councilmen Ray Cook, chairman, William M. Reid and John Eshelman. Councilman Reid was absent Tuesday night.

ACCUSATIONS against the police and the ensuing discussion were precipitated when Council Clerk Fred Nicholas read a letter signed by all seven members of the police department. The letter requested a salary increase of $20 a month for each police officer and reminded council that no answer had been received to an identical request presented to council a few months ago. The letter was signed by Chief McCrady and Patrolmen Alva H. Shastene, George Green, Elmer Merriam, John W. McGinnis, Roderick E. List, and Samuel Turney Ross.

Councilman Crites arose and commented that police were entitled to more pay, but that the city had only $11,000 in the general fund with no more cash in sight until mid-May.

Councilman Ray Anderson said the patrolmen now receive $125 a month plus a bonus of $35 a month and he declared they deserved more money.

At this juncture Councilman Crites offered a motion to refer the request to the safety committee. The motion was promptly seconded by Councilman Eshelman.

THE LENGTHY discussion which followed was launched by Councilman Cook who said that as a member of the safety committee (Continued on Page Two)

League for Less Noise finds that New York is noisier under O'Dwyer than it was under LaGuardia — not to disagree but it seems quieter.

Anyway justice has caught up with Hirohito—he has been denied the right to vote in the next election.

Nothing much was said but there was a strong inference that he had been a bad boy.

General MacArthur has suggested a peace treaty for Japan but he'll have to wait in line—as usual.

At Moscow the Soviet is willing to settle with Germany for 20 billion dollars but our position is a little more complicated — we don't want anything.

But it's nice to know that no matter how the Moscow conference turns out nothing can prevent the delivery of our Spring seed catalogs this month.

Every gnarled, twisted wretch who ever battled a cut worm will again feel the false thrill of coming victory stirring in his bones.

Russian Press Attacks
Marshall For First Time

MOSCOW, March 19 — Secretary of State George C. Marshall was subjected to an attack by the Russian press today for the first time since he assumed his post as chief of United States foreign affairs.

The Communist newspaper Pravda referred to him in critical tones in a thinly-veiled attack on a recent statement he made on democratization in the big four council of foreign ministers.

Pravda charged that real democracy does not exist in the American occupation zone of Germany where political "minorities" cannot get representation unless they receive more than 10 percent of the vote.

Indicative of the "gloves off" attitude which is developing between Russia and the western power, at the conference, Pravda sarcastically stated that Marshall "deemed it necessary to dedicate part of his speech to general discussion about democracy."

THE COMMUNIST organ declared that there is "a great difference between the theory of democracy and its practice," and added:

"Marshall demands that freely organized political parties should (Continued on Page Two)

MARSHALL TO TAKE OFFENSIVEU. S. Secretary Set To Deny
All Attacks By Soviet
Sources In Future

MOSCOW, March 19 — U. S. Secretary of State George C. Marshall took the offensive at the big four council of foreign ministers today, determined to repudiate and denounce all unwarranted and misleading Soviet charges against the western allies.

As the big four assembled following a lavish and friendly party given by Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov last night, Marshall found himself under attack in the Soviet press for the first time.

There were strong indications in American conference circles that Marshall no longer will permit any such allegations to go unanswered.

New American line of thought was demonstrated by Gen. Mark W. Clark at a meeting of the deputies appointed to draft a peace treaty for Austria.

CLARK lashed at the Soviet press for its loose use of the term "fascists" in dealing with American political personalities. The four-star general, to the obvious embarrassment of Soviet Deputy Fedor Gusev, succeeded in having the word "fascists" deleted entirely from the Austrian draft.

PEAK PROFESSOR
TELLS GROUP

COLUMBUS, O., March 19 — An Ohio State University rural economics professor told a farm and Home week audience on the Columbus campus today that "farm prices have hit the top."

Prof. Virgil R. Wertz explained that the current increase in farm income is only temporary. He said that the overall trend is downward, although he predicted that the general national income for 1947 will reach last year's level.

UMW CHIEFTAIN
WITHDRAWS BID
FOR WALKOUTCoal Production At Least
Until June 30 Seen As
Order Is Followed

WASHINGTON, March 19 — John L. Lewis today cancelled his March 31 deadline for another coal walkout by reinstating the United Mine Workers wage agreement with the government.

Lewis sent a letter to Interior Secretary J. A. Krug informing him that the union notice of last November terminating the Krug-Lewis contract "is hereby unconditionally withdrawn."

The UMW president acted in accordance with the decision of the supreme court which directed withdrawal of the contract termination notice.

The high tribunal, in upholding contempt convictions against Lewis and the UMW reduced the $3,500,000 fine against the union to $700,000 on condition that the termination notice was withdrawn.

LEWIS' letter to Krug was only three lines long. It said:

"The notice of Nov. 15, 1946, terminating the Krug-Lewis agreement as of Nov. 20, 1946, is hereby unconditionally withdrawn."

It was this notice which sent the miners out on a 17-day work stoppage last Fall and brought drastic government legal action to end a paralyzing shutdown of coal production.

THE GOVERNMENT obtained an injunction in federal district court against the walkout. Lewis refused to comply and was cited for contempt of court.

In appealing to the supreme court, he issued back-to-work orders to the miners last Dec. 7 and told them to continue on the job until midnight, March 31.

Today, Lewis advised the miners as follows:

"The instruction of Dec. 7, 1946, to members of the UMW to continue production of bituminous coal until March 31, 1947, is hereby unconditionally withdrawn and all the members of the UMW are hereby instructed that said Krug-Lewis agreement is in full force and effect until final determination of the basic issues arising under the agreement."

"These actions have been taken in full accordance with the orders and directions of the district court of the United States for the District of Columbia, as (Continued on Page Two)

TWO CLEVELAND
POLICEMEN ARE
SUICIDE VICTIMS

CLEVELAND, March 19 — A coroner's verdict was expected today in the second apparent suicide of a Cleveland patrolman within 15 hours.

Police said Casimir F. Siat, 32, shot himself in the head with his service revolver last night in the basement of his home. Assigned to a zone car, Siat had worked yesterday and left home for a short while after supper. Police found a piece of paper with the single word, "darling," written on it.

Earlier yesterday, Patrolman Orville A. Dew, 32, of the accident prevention bureau, had shot himself in the living room of his home.

CLEVELAND, March 19 — Communists were barred today from membership in the independent Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

SENATE IS TOLD

COLUMBUS, O., March 19 — Ohio's highways have failed to maintain pace with the demands of industry, the senate highways committee was warned today.

D. E. Patterson, county engineer of Lorain county, told the committee that the state is faced with a traffic jam that will drive industry from Ohio unless super-highways are constructed to alleviate the condition. He was appearing in support of the Winter bill to establish a turnpike commission authorized to construct super toll highways, similar to the famed Pennsylvania turnpike.

Sen. Ralph Winter (R-Lodi) the bill's sponsor, explained at the first hearing on the measure that the bill merely permitted the establishment of the five-member commission, and that construction of the super toll roads would not cost Ohio one cent. The cost, he said, would be borne by private interests investing in the toll commission bonds.

"When a boy raises a pig, he raises more than a pig—he raises himself. Through responsibility he develops personality."

LABOR COURT IS PROPOSED IN SENATE BILL

WASHINGTON, March 19 — Sens. Ferguson (R) Mich., and Smith (R) N. J., today introduced legislation setting up a far-reaching system of labor relations courts.

Under the Ferguson-Smith bill, the special courts would:

1. Interpret and enforce collective bargaining agreements.

2. Interpret existing labor legislation.

Ferguson told the senate that in the industrial labor field a condition of "near-anarchy" prevails. He said:

"As far as industrial disputes are concerned, we are in a state of near-anarchy. Our government, in this area, has lost its power to govern."

MAYOR DIES

CLEVELAND, March 19 — Suburban North Olmsted was in mourning today for Mayor David L. Douglass, 41, who was found dead in his garage late yesterday. North Olmsted police chief George Christman said the mayor had been working on his car with the motor running when the garage door evidently blew shut.

TALMADGE
OUSTED
BY COURT

ATLANTA, GA., March 19 — Georgia supreme court today handed down a historic 5-2 decision installing Lieut. Gov. M. E. Thompson as the state's chief executive.

The decision ousts Herman Talmadge from office and ends one of the nation's strangest struggles for political power.

Talmadge immediately vacated the gubernatorial suite in the capitol.

Written by Presiding Justice W. H. Duckworth, the majority opinion of the court held that the general assembly was not qualified to elect Talmadge to the office.

The high tribunal flatly contradicted one of the Talmadge contentions in the case, and stated:

"The courts have jurisdiction" regardless of the fact that "political questions" also were involved in the case.

CHIANG FORCES
IN RED CAPITALGovernment Troops Sweep
Into Yenan In Surprise
Offensive Move

NANKING, March 19 — Chinese government troops drove today into Yenan, capital of Communist China, in a swift surprise offensive that may mark a turning point in the civil war.

The city in northwest China, for many years the nerve center of the powerful Chinese red regime, was entered by nationalist forces at 10 o'clock this morning.

Announcement of this victorious thrust into the heart of China's Communist-controlled territory was made by the central government in Nanking.

THE TERSE official bulletin stated only that the Nationalists had penetrated into the Red capital and the time of their entry. No further details were given.

It was not yet known in Nanking whether Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's government legions had completed the capture of Yenan. Nor was the extent of Communist resistance—if any—known.

LONDON, March 19 — A Reuters dispatch from Nanking today quoted an official announcement saying that Chinese government troops have captured the city of Yenan, for 10 years Communist stronghold in Chensi province of northern China.

DAHLIA MURDER

ST. LOUIS, March 19 — St. Louis police today were checking the story of Melvin Bailey, 23, that he killed Elizabeth Short, "The Black Dahlia," in Los Angeles Jan. 12 or 13.

Detective Chief Leonard Murphy said that Bailey made a statement to police last night, giving details of the murder.

Bailey, who told police he is a former Marine and Army Air Force member, was arrested Feb. 12 by Missouri highway patrolmen on a stolen auto charge. In Los Angeles, homicide Capt. Jack Donahoe regarded Bailey's confession with skepticism. He pointed to several discrepancies in Bailey's story.

335 ABSENTEES
BRINGS ACTION
BY CITY BOARDFlu, Cold Epidemic Blamed
For Closing Of Grades,
High School Here

Absenteeism caused by severe colds and influenza compelled the closing of all Circleville public schools at noon Wednesday for the rest of the week by order of the board of education.

The board announced that the schools will reopen Monday morning.

Out of a total enrollment of 1,492 in the high school and the five elementary schools, it was stated, 335 boys and girls were absent from classes Wednesday morning.

THIS INCREASED to 468 the total number of school absentees in Circleville and in Harrison township where the Duvall and South Bloomfield schools remained closed.

The Pickaway county school board said the other 13 rural schools remained open although there was heavy absenteeism in many sections, notably in Ashville and in Monroe township.

Schools all over Ohio are closing daily because of the epidemic of "flu" cases. In some areas schools have been closed for several days.

THE SITUATION brought a warning from State Health Director Roger E. Heering.

"Stay out of crowds to avoid influenza" was the advice of Heering.

Dr. Heering said that if a person should contract the flu, the best remedy is to go to bed immediately and call a physician.

He listed the symptoms of the illness as fatigue, lack of appetite, aches, chills, dizziness, nausea and a cold.

COUNTY HEALTH commissioners were advised today by Dr. Heering to keep schools open during the current influenza wave unless absences become (Continued on Page Two)

HEMMING SENT
TO PEN ON BAD
CHECK CHARGE

COLUMBUS, O., March 19 — Robert Haine Hemming, 42, accused of abducting a 20-year-old Ohio State University coed on New Year's Day, began serving a six to 18 year term in the state penitentiary today on another charge.

Hemming was sentenced in Franklin county common pleas court on six counts of passing worthless checks. He had pleaded guilty to the charge when arraigned in January.

Meanwhile, Prosecutor Ralph J. Bartlett indicated a kidnap charge against Hemming would be "held in abeyance."

Hemming is accused of kidnapping Mary Virginia Kimberly, daughter of an Ohio State professor. The pair disappeared New Year's afternoon and was the object of a two-day search before the girl returned home.

GAMBLING AIRED IN COUNCIL

mittee he had been rather unfamiliar with city finances and therefore disliked the idea of referring the salary increase request to that committee.

"This matter should be discussed at a safety committee meeting and it should then be taken up with the finance committee," asserted Councilman Eshelman. "I don't like the idea of paying out more money for a job that is not being done any too well now, and we should gain a working knowledge of the operation of the police department. We should have better police service in Cleveland. The service should be improved and then we can pay for the improved service."

Councilman Cook remarked that "it is not within the power of this council to tell the police department how it should be run. All we can do is make recommendations."

To this Councilman Eshelman retorted that "they are now asking for a salary increase and therefore council is now in a bargaining position. The police department is lax and I am not in favor of the salary increase."

AT THIS point Mayor Gordon arose among the spectators. Resenting Councilman Eshelman's remarks, Mayor Gordon asserted that the police department "is more efficient now than for years."

Councilman Crites declared that "two or three weeks ago I asked two policemen what they were going to do about gambling and they said they knew all about gambling operations, that they started to close up one downtown place, and that the police chief ordered them not to and threatened to suspend them if they disobeyed."

Councilman Crites further asserted that a Columbus woman recently called him on the telephone and complained that every weekend her husband squandered his earnings "in Cleveland gambling joints."

"McCready seems to be running the police department to suit himself," Councilman Crites declared.

"Probably the police personnel is satisfactory," Councilman Eshelman commented, "if properly directed, but traffic rules are not being enforced."

MAYOR GORDON again stepped forward. He said "this all comes back to the fact the police department lacks men. As to gambling, Cleveland is cleaner than any town in this area."

"Years ago," the mayor continued, "there were five numbers games in operation in Cleveland. You can never stamp out gambling entirely. Some people like to gamble, some like a poker game in their homes, some like to drink — and some like to chase women. I don't believe you want to attempt to reform Cleveland. I believe that what little gambling there is in Cleveland cannot be stamped out. The people elected me mayor three times and during my time in office I have received not one complaint about gambling."

Councilman Boyd Horn suggested that instead of more stringent enforcement of parking rules the enforcement should be more lenient for the benefit of the city in general and downtown merchants and rural motorists in particular.

parties must get at least 10 percent of the vote in order to have representation in any district. The Communists obtained considerably less than eight percent in some districts, and failed to poll 10 in any.

Continuing to intimate that Marshall was preaching but not practicing democracy, Pravda continued:

"MARSHALL informed the ministers he is all in favor of unified effective rights of trade unions in Germany. But in practice his unification is being undermined by policies of the American and British occupational authorities who are conducting the practice of breaking up the trade union movement by creating a federation of separate trade unions in the western zones. This prevents unification on a national scale."

"One can see that the theory and practice of democracy do not blend in the American zone. Even less is this practice in harmony with the decisions of the Berlin (Potsdam) conference."

Pravda likewise implied that American authorities also are failing to practice theories on denazification. In this connection, the Communist organ said that "democratization" can be beneficial only to the remnants of Nazism which still are lurking in the darkness in Germany."

Illness of an important out-of-town witness for the state has compelled postponement of the trial of Orin Diltz, 24, and George Clifton, 23, which had been scheduled to begin Monday before a Pickaway county common pleas jury. It was announced Wednesday by County Prosecutor Kenneth Robbins.

Diltz and Clifton are scheduled to face trial jointly under an indictment charging them with the $1,300 burglary of the American Legion club at 136 East Main street. The robbery occurred the night of Nov. 9, 1946.

Prosecutor Robbins and Judge William D. Radcliff said a new date for the trial has not been set.

Diltz is now in the Ohio Penitentiary and Clifton is free under a $25,000 bond.

A jury on Feb. 5 found Diltz guilty of grand larceny in the looting of the parked car of Vaden Couch and Judge Radcliff sentenced Diltz to one to seven years in the state prison.

A jury on Feb. 22 acquitted Clifton of the $333 burglary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars club at 217 North Court street.

Early in January the grand jury returned five indictments against Diltz and four against Clifton.

UMW CHIEFTAIN WITHDRAWS BID FOR WALKOUT

affirmed by the supreme court of the United States on March 6, 1947.

"The foregoing is for your official information."

LEWIS acted less than 24 hours before a formal mandate of the supreme court was scheduled to go into effect.

The high court's order—formally directing Lewis to withdraw the termination notice—was set for issuance tomorrow.

Lewis would have had until March 25 to comply with the mandate.

The mine chief's action apparently insures uninterrupted coal production at least until June 30, when federal seizure of the bituminous industry ends, barring "wildcat" stoppages by his 400,000 miners.

In his notice to the miners, Lewis stated that the government-UMW contract would remain in effect until final determination of the basic issues arising under the agreement.

This referred to the dispute over whether the UMW had a legal right last November to terminate the Krug-Lewis pact.

This issue still is before Federal District Judge T. Alan Goldsborough for determination.

The government seeks a declaratory judgment to the effect that the Krug-Lewis agreement cannot be reopened or terminated for the full period of government possession of the mines.

MARSHALL TO TAKE OFFENSIVE

Hitler's regime will be labelled as Nazis.

Sources close to Gen. Marshall emphasized that in the opening days of the big four conference the chief American delegate deliberately refrained from answering charges and critical inferences levelled against American policy with respect to post-war treatment of Germany.

He did so because he wanted to avoid wasting time on politics and minor matters. Now he feels that an important stage of the conference is approaching, and his associates say he is determined to fight back against what he considers unwarranted and misleading charges.

MARSHALL's sharp rebuttal yesterday of Molotov's allegation that the United States and Great Britain already have taken more than ten billion dollars worth of reparations out of Germany in the form of gold, patents and inventions marked his initial foray into the ultimate of plain-speaking.

His advisers say his offensive thrusts in this direction will become more forceful and penetrating from now on.

SCHOOL FUNDS ARE STUDIED BY SENATE GROUP

Bill To Aid Subdivisions Introduced; Bounty Measure Passes

COLUMBUS, O., March 19—The Ohio senate education committee, which already has recommended an 85-billion-dollar-a-year school foundation program, today considered Governor Herbert's budget recommendation for an additional $6,000,000 in increases for the first half of this year.

Herbert proposed that the six millions be apportioned to school districts on the basis of 40 per cent of the regular May 31 allocation, which will use up the final half of the 30 millions earmarked for schools in the partial appropriations bill.

Meanwhile, Sen. Kyle Brooks (R - Cincinnati) declared he would insist on a hearing for the bill of the Cincinnati senatorial delegation, which would give school teachers a $14,500,000 pay increase in each of the years 1947 and 1948.

Education committee chairman Virgil Cramer said it would be impossible to hear the measure before a week from next Tuesday, since the committee schedule was completed until that date.

MEANWHILE, the house conservation committee referred to a five-man subcommittee the Mooney bill to establish a new state department of mines and mining.

No opposition to the proposal has appeared in two previous hearings, but Rep. L. P. Mooney (R-Hocking) told the committee that there were certain details yet to be worked out and asked that a subcommittee be appointed.

The house yesterday passed, 103-12, an emergency bill to make permanent the authority of counties to offer a bounty on red and gray foxes.

It also completed legislative passage of the bill of Sen. Fred L. Adams (R-Bowling Green) to provide for the creation of a reserve list for the state guard and naval militia. However, the bill goes back to the senate for concurrence in a floor amendment.

THE HOUSE defeated the bill of Rep. J. D. Simpson (R-Hardin) to provide for the registration with the state division of vital statistics all marriages, divorces or annulments. The bill received only 53 votes, with 70 needed for passage.

The senate passed unanimously the proposed constitutional amendment to provide that a lieutenant - governor - elect shall become governor if the governor elect dies before taking office.

The senate also passed an emergency bill to permit county boards of education to accept donations and purchase war surplus supplies for local boards.

introduced a bill which embodies the major portions of Governor Herbert's program to aid local subdivisions. It would:

1. Return to local subdivisions the 14 millions a year collected in intangible taxes on securities and deposits.
2. Repeal the $5,400,000 state admissions tax so local governments can enter this field.
3. Return to the subdivisions the state's present one-half share of the cigarette dealers' license tax, amounting to one-half millions a year.
4. Specifically authorize cities to levy a tax on consumers gas, light and telephone bills.

If the bill is enacted, it will mean a cut in the local governments' sales tax allocation will be in order, since Herbert recommended the intangibles tax or a sales tax increase to 24 millions a year, but not both.

Weak, Watery Blood Blamed for Making Men and Women Look and Feel Older THAN THEIR YEARS

How do you feel at the end of a day? Is that old time pep and drive lacking? Have you checked-up on your blood strength lately? Thousands now regain glowing good looks and vitality through the release of vibrant energy to every muscle, fibre, cell.

Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a general run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloating and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on SSS Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. ### BILLION MINIMUM

WASHINGTON, March 19—Sen. Taft (R) O., today estimated a one billion dollar annual federal social welfare budget is necessary to provide minimum decent living standards for the American people.

The expression, "to dine with the Duke of Humphrey," originated in the fact that Humphrey, Duke of Gloucester, was so hospitable that every dinnerless man engaged in the arts was welcome to dine with him. After the duke's death his almsmen were at a loss for a meal, so to dine with him meant to go dinnerless.

TRUMAN FLIES TO WASHINGTON AFTER VACATION

President Ready To Plunge Into International Problems Again

U. S. SUBMARINE BASE, KEY WEST, Fla. March 19 — President Truman, rested and refreshed from a brief vacation in the sun, returns to Washington today to tackle the monumental task of guiding the nation through still uncharted and uncertain international seas.

The chief executive ends his Florida sojourn at 2 p. m. when he again boards the presidential special plane, "Sacred Cow", for the thousand mile return flight to the nation's capital.

He is due back in Washington for early dinner, arriving a little before 7 p. m. at the ATC terminal.

Mr. Truman has reported great benefits in restored mental and physical vitality from his week's rest. He is deeply tanned. The spring is back in his step. The President was worn out from two strenuous weeks—one in Mexico—before he came here. He has snapped back like a rubber band.

THE PRESIDENT'S week in southern Florida has been a rest cure. He has kept in touch with Washington and with Moscow, as well as other world capitals, by the finest means of communications in the modern world. He has had with him the key men of his White House staff to aid and advise him.

But his main objective has been getting a needed rest. This mission has been accomplished. The president looks in great shape from his many hours in the sun, loafing and fishing, and long nights of sleep.

Today, he returns to the White House to plunge back into the international maelstrom.

ONE OF the first and most pressing matters that will come to his attention will be pressing through congress his request for urgent and immediate aid to Greece and Turkey to save them from encroachment of Communism.

Mr. Truman will talk with Paul Porter, who has been to Greece to study Greek economic conditions.

The President also will interview the United States ambassadors to Greece and Turkey, who have been called back to Washington to report and consult on the situations in those two countries.

Mr. Truman, according to reports reaching Key West, also is now faced with some developing opposition in the congress on the part of Republicans to his program of aid to small countries threatened by Communist expansionist policies.

The President is expected to throw his full energies into the fight to push his recommendations through the congress.

SOCIETY

Missionary Society Of St. Paul Meets

Thirteen members of Woman's Missionary society of St. Paul Evangelical United Brethren church of Washington township held their meeting in the home of Mrs. Ralph DeLong, Mrs. Ruth Leist, president, was in charge of the short business session and devotional period.

Piano prelude "I Love to Tell the Story" opened the session which is the theme song of the society for the year. Scripture verses were read by various members which concerned our relations with those of other races. An interesting feature of the meeting was that the members came dressed to represent those of other races and localities that are served by missionaries of the EUB church. This group includes China, Japan, Africa, New Mexico and Kentucky.

Mrs. Zelma Richter presented the program which consisted of two Negro spirituals, "Lord Look down Upon Me" and "I Just Keep Living Along" which were sung by Mrs. Larason. Mrs. Maud Hedges read "Poor Lil' Lamb" and "Little Brown Baby", poems written by Paul Lawrence Dunbar. Readings were given by Ethel Marshall, Sylvia Leist, Ida Warner and Mildred Leist.

Salem WSCS Meets With Mrs. Harral

Mrs. Simon Harral, Pickaway township, lent the hospitality of her home Thursday afternoon for the meeting of members of the Salem Woman's Society of Christian Service, with Mrs. Edgar Harral assistant hostess.

Mrs. Ross Courtright, president, opened the meeting with a silent prayer for Mrs. Charles Baldoser and Mrs. Philip Davis, who were absent due to serious illness. Theme for the program was, "Thou art our Father" Mrs. Alva Dyer and Mrs. Harry Sharrett conducted the devotional period, which was followed by the group singing "Breath on Me, Breath of God". Mrs. Fairy Alkire discussed, "Children and their Churches". A committee was appointed to supervise the redecoration of the church. In this group are Mrs. Alkire, Mrs. Jesse Hildebrand and Mrs. Edgar Harral. Personal get-well messages were sent, Mrs. Davis and Mrs. Baldoser. Holiday banks were collected, Mrs. Hildebrand reported that $21.25 was received from the hen donation.

St. Patrick's day program was presented by, Mrs. Sharrett and Mrs. Elmer Dodd. Miss Rosemary Green and Miss Gilyon were guests at the meeting, and presented, "My Wild Irish Rose" and "Whispering Hope" in their vocal duets. With the hymn "We Give Thee but Thine Own" and a prayer by the group closed the program. Hostess served refreshments to the 30 members and guests present. April meeting will be in the home of Mrs. Clarence Huffer, Pickaway township.

MRS. SHANE HOSTESS

WRITER RANKS CARDINALS ONE OF BEST TEAMS

Manager Dyer Has Everybody
Back From World Series
Winning Squad

BY LAWTON CARVER
INS Sports Editor

NEW YORK, March 19—There will come a time when people looking around for great ball clubs to talk about will say what about those St. Louis Cardinals? When they ask that question they could have in mind the pennant winning Cardinals of the Dizzy Dean era or they could be thinking of these Cardinals of today.

I recently mentioned that the Cleveland Indians might have the best infield next season. With Joe Gordon playing an acrobatic second base and Lou Boudreau a spectacular shortstop the Indians almost certainly will have the best so-called key-stone combination.

But the Cardinals look like the best all-around baseball club, including spirit.

What the Cardinals did to the Boston Red Sox last season in the World Series will never be forgotten by anybody who witnessed the spectacle.

HERE WAS an inspired baseball club which didn't boast of inspiration alone. These players had everything to go with it. They could play the game. They also had a nice-talking leader in Manager Eddie Dyer who contributed a good share of the brainwork evident in the series. In case you have forgotten here is the lineup for the Cardinals last season and now:

AS FOR pitchers, Manager Dyer has Murray Dickson, Howie Pollet, and Cat Brecheen as spearheads with Johnny Beazley and Red Munger to help out, not to mention a seeming score of others from the farms. I'm not picking the Cardinals yet. But I would hate to be forced to pick against them before some real stand-out comes along. Where is the stand-out—unless it is the Cards themselves?

JACKSON CAGERS WILL BE HONORED THURSDAY NIGHT

Annual basketball banquet sponsored by the Parent Teachers society will be held in Jackson township school Thursday at 6:30 p. m. Principal speaker will be H. R. Cotterman, Capital University. Also on the program is Paul Leithart, magician. Awards will be presented at the banquet. Recently members of the basketball squad were guests for a game at Ohio State University.

ASHVILLE KP, ROBTOWN CLASH IN CAGE SCRAP

Robtown Stock Farm and Ashville KP cage teams will resume their rivalry Thursday night in the feature game of the City Industrial league program at Roll and Bowl.

These two rivals will be battling for the right to reach the final playoff for the championship of the league. Each lost once in second round play and each won in playoff games last week. The winner will meet Blue Ribbon Dairy, first round winner, for the season's title.

Preceding this game, which is set for 8:30 p. m., will be a game between two good girls teams from Columbus. Clashing at 7:30 p. m. will be Farm Bureau and Linden Church of Christ teams.

During the Middle Ages March 25 was considered the first day of the new year by most Christian people.

Brief Facts About Class B Finalists

COLUMBUS, O., March 19 — Thumbnailing the Class B state high school tournament teams.

COLUMBIANA—Claims best record of any tourney team, A or B—only one defeat in 24 games. That was at hands of Salem, a Class A school that lost only one regular season game. Clippers have scored 66 victories in 70 regular season games over a four year period. Columbiana's tournament opener Friday with Corning will match two highest scoring teams to reach Columbus—Corning has averaged 53 points, Columbiana 54.

Clipper coach is Johnny Cabas, product of Mt. Union, same college that produced Ashtabula's Bob Ball in Class A. This is Columbiana's fourth state tournament appearance. Lost to Northridge in 1945 finals. Lee Thomas, star forward, was INS All-Ohio Class B selection last week.

CORNING—making third try in state tourney, with 1946-47 record of 29 victories, eight losses. Those 36 games are most any team has played. Just sneaked over 2,000-mark in scoring by two points. Railroaders hail from same Perry county area that produced Glenford and Somerset, champs in 1941 and 1942. Corning coach is Floyd Brown, who received his training at Ohio Northern. Railroaders are built around stocky Jerry Jones, who made INS All-Ohio at a guard position. He's touted as one of the finest individual performers in the state this year.

NEW KNOXVILLE — Represents smallest school among this year's survivors. Enrollment is 38 boys. Coach Roger Stauffer doubles as principal. Auglaize county school grows 'em long and lanky, however. Season's record is 24 victories against two defeats. Never reached state finals before.

Current worry is flu siege that has four first stringers on sick list. District and regional tournament observers say corps of eight clever girl cheer-leaders drew nearly as much attention among fans as fine New Knoxville team. New Knoxville athletic association will pay admission for three of them since state passes only five through gates.

PHILLIPSBURG — Another first timer. This Montgomery county quintet has a 26-and-2 mark. Team of short boys with none over six feet. Has only a part-time coach in Raymond P. Humphrey, who matriculated at the University of Illinois. Team has a fine defensive record—opponents averaged only 28 points per contest.

The Milk House

● Give much careful thought and planning to the milk house location, construction and equipment. It plays as important part in the production of Grade A milk as does the barn.

● The milk house provides a clean, fly free place for straining the milk, a satisfactory cooling unit, a source of hot water and facilities for proper washing and storage of both milk and utensils.

● Locate the milk house near as possible to your milking parlor or stable to make it as handy as possible for straining milk in, as well as storing the milk cans and utensils. Good drainage is important and water piped to the milk house is a must.

● If you build a milk house inside of your dairy barn careful plans must be followed to comply with regulations. The milk house must not open directly into the barn or milk stable but all doors should open outdoors but may be near the stable door. Put windows in all four sides of the milk house. Be sure of plenty natural light and ventilation.

● Contact your dairy field man for plans before building. Be sure...

STRIKE-BREAKING

GOV. DEWEY'S proposal that teachers and other public servants should be forbidden to strike pleases many of his friends, who think that this step will make him president. They recall Calvin Coolidge, who entered the White House because he was supposed to have broken the Boston police strike.

Fate was kind to Gov. Coolidge. Actually the heavy work of suppressing the strike was done by Mayor Andrew J. Peters of Boston. This is made clear by William Allen White, Coolidge's biographer and firm political supporter. Not until it was all over did Coolidge send his famous telegram to President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor, "There is no right to strike against the public safety by anybody, any time, anywhere."

Americans were looking then, as often, for a leader. Coolidge's sharp statement was what they wanted. On this foundation they built up the legend of Coolidge the strikebreaker.

Some candidates think there is one more presidency in Coolidge's policy of economy. Is there also one in his opposition to strikes by public employes

RULE FOR DRIVERS

SHE HAS TAUGHT more than 2,000 people to drive automobiles. The "she" is not a misprint. It refers to a Pittsfield, Mass., white-haired grandmother in her 60's, Mrs. Lulu Lovely, who has been in the business for a quarter of a century and loves it. She has taught all ages from youngsters to men and women in their late 70's. She believes women make better drivers than men—if they're properly taught. Women don't take the chances men do.

This teacher, who drives 15,000 miles a year herself, and never has had an accident, has developed one anti-accident rule—the Golden Rule. All drivers, whatever their sex and age, could afford to observe that one.

The Japanese are said to be planning a church in Tokyo in honor of Gen. MacArthur. It's rather a new idea, but there may be something in it.

This generation seems to master almost every human problem except balancing budgets.

Excessive taxes may kill the geese that lay the golden eggs.

Assignment: America . . . by Kenneth L. Dixon

WASHINGTON, March 19—This could be just a funny little story about community guilt conscience. Only it isn't.

I leave it to you what it is. It started a few weeks ago when I wrote a series of stories about the disgracefully low wages paid American public school teachers. They included examples where street cleaners, garbage collectors, janitors, ditchdiggers and yard men made more money than teachers.

Those stories stated that there were towns where many teachers had to turn to night work and week-end jobs to support their families. The many thousands of experienced teachers who were quitting, or had quit, the profession in order to survive, were mentioned.

So was the growing lack of respect for the teacher among parents and students, due to his or her economic inferiority in the community.

But no places or names were specifically mentioned in all that series.

Yet within a few days I was receiving a stream of letters, and each writer seemed to think I had been reporting conditions in his or her individual community.

Most of them agreed that the lack of teachers, the lowering of the teacher efficiency ratings, the poor educational conditions and the increasing disrespect for the teaching profession had definitely contributed to the juvenile delinquency in their communities.

Here in Washington, national educational association authorities agreed with their conclusions. They said the shortage of capable teachers, the crowded classrooms, the lack of playground equipment or supervision and the subsequent youthful disdain for all rules and authority had contributed greatly to juvenile delinquency.

In fact, some named those as major causes.

Then, one teacher wrote me there was another educational abuse just as deadly. She referred to what she termed the dictatorial powers granted school boards in many states.

Point by point, she cited cases of rank favoritism, graft, recognized nepotism, contract kick-backs, moral corruption evident even to the children, "unholy demands" on teachers, improper and even dangerous health and study conditions, and similar instances of sheer rottenness on the part of some school boards she had known—including the one for which she was working.

Obviously, pupils knew all about this situation and consequently ridiculed classroom rules and school authority. Thus, their first and most important step toward juvenile delinquency was taken down a pathway left open by their parents and other adults of the community—adults who did nothing to correct the situation.

I wrote that story, without naming the city or the teacher.

Within 24 hours after it was printed, I was receiving long distance phone calls and telegrams. Within 48 hours, the first of the letters began to arrive.

Without exception, they either

asked a question, "was this our school board?" or stated flatly, "that is true here."

The questions I could answer honestly in the negative for, ironically, no one in the city about whom it was written has called, wired or written, although the story was published there. But to those admissions of local guilt, there was no answer.

There are results, of course. You can see them in the new national crime totals recently released by FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover. We're setting new records. Now we average nearly two murders, 20 assaults and 200 assorted robberies, burglaries, thefts and larcenies every hour. That's right, every hour!

And, lo, juvenile delinquents lead all the rest. Furthermore, said Hoover, they're graduating from petty thievery to armed robbery, rape and murder.

You see the results in the Illinois adolescent who butchered at least three, including a baby, in the Maryland lad who slew his entire family, in the New York youngster who hanged his little playmate.

But those are results — not answers. The answers lie in the community homes and schools who must deal with the problem.

Certainly, however grimly just it might have been, that was no answer the other night at Sing Sing when they led three boys, half insane with horror, to the electric chair.

As I said, this isn't a funny story.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, March 19—Mr. Truman did not seek any specific form of his proposed $400,000,000 aid to Greece and Turkey, so no one has been able to get a direct line on the idea—or the possible results. Not even the congressmen in charge of the legislation profess to be clear on the subject, and the other legislators have been sloshing around in a somewhat bewildered state. Certainly their ideas have not coalesced.

The truth is no one wants to make the loan, grant, trust fund, gift or whatever it finally is to be. This includes Republicans and Democrats, and all phases of the proposed venture including the diplomatic aspect of British policy. The Attlee government seems to wish to withdraw from world affairs, or at least withdraw its troops from same. Certainly it seems to wish to abandon the empire, but some officials say Britain only wishes to abandon its commitments in Greece, Palestine, Egypt, India and Burma while clinging to France and Germany. Whatever she is doing, no one knows, and there are grave doubts that either Mr. Attlee or Mr. Bevin does. But whatever it turns out to be, surely a weakening of the British end of the fight for democracy and individual freedom around the world.

Her foreign policy seems as confused as her domestic policy, and as little aimed to attain the results her government desires as her policy of reducing the work-week in the coal mines at a time when she needs coal production desperately. Private British reports suggest there is no chance of the confused British government arriving at any political clarity through a coalition administration or any point non-partisan patriotic effort, but that the socialist laborite government will last its five years in office. Even some sympathetic British government sources say their politicians can thank God for the snowstorms and blizzards which covered up the mistakes of the Attlee regime from the eyes of the people. In any event, congressmen actually do not seem to know much more about it than you do. Whence has come their reluctance and inquisitiveness. (Note—I am told the British sounded out this government officially on another loan for itself, and was told promptly public opinion in this country would not support another loan at this time.)

Uncertainty originates in those British facts, and spreads from there on. Officially there was no surprise at the British request that we take over her Greek commitments, at least in one sense. Last fall the Attlee government announced it would retire from Greece. The only thing new, apparently, is that she will withdraw economic aid. She intended to take her troop out anyway.

In this connection few authorities here think the administration's new dealers in Greece inspired or had much to do with the development of the Truman policy. Paul Porter (remember OPA?) has been the special economic envoy of the administration.

This deal occurred in the recent national championship tournament for the Harold S. Vanderbilt Cup. Two very famous veterans were in the East-West seats when the bidding recorded occurred, and the North-South pair was a couple of lesser-known entrants who were straining for results—which accounts for South's unusual final bid.

West led the heart 6. East played the K, which won. We can easily see that a heart return would result in setting the contract three tricks. But East studied the dummy. He decided the spade suit was a dangerous threat. Counting South for only two spades—because with three he should support the rebid major—he placed four with West. So West might be able to stop the spade run if the diamond re-entry was removed first from the dummy.

So East led his diamond 2 to the second trick. West used his A, then knocked out the dummy's other diamond with the 7 to the Q. Now South brought the spade 2 to his J and West held up, playing the 9. Then South led the spade 5. West, on the spot, decided East had held the 7-3 and South only two spades, so came in with his A instead of holding up again. To avoid giving South a trick with the heart Q, he returned his diamond 5. South got the rest of the tricks then with Spades and clubs, making an extra.

DIET AND HEALTH

Recovering from Influenza May Be a Long, Slow Process

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

MANY health officers are today of the opinion that ere long influenza may again be on the rampage. That is why it is well for patients who have had an attack of influenza to realize that they cannot rush the business of getting well.

In the first place, they may not regain their full vitality at once. They are quite likely to experience such symptoms as pain here or there in the body, accompanied by tiredness and weakness which may last for some time. This condition is most likely to develop if the attack of influenza has been prolonged and the patient has been slow in recovering from it.

Other Symptoms

In addition to the symptoms mentioned, the patient may have frequent and recurrent attacks of sore throat and cough, night sweats, poor appetite, loss of weight, sleeplessness, tingling of the fingers and toes, and lack of energy.

According to Dr. Gordon G. Allison of Atlanta, Georgia, these symptoms may occur for as long a time as 6 to 20 months. On examination of the throat, it is often found that the roof of the mouth and the back part of the throat as well as the tonsils are red and swollen. In addition, there is some swelling of the lymph glands in the neck. The lymph glands at the root of the lung may also be enlarged as shown by X-ray plates.

Dr. Allison believes that the symptoms occur because the virus which produces influenza is still present in the body, particularly in the lymph glands, thus causing the pain in various parts of the body. Many of the patients develop anemia, or a lessening of the coloring in the blood. Such preparations as the sulfonamide drugs and penicillin do not seem to have any effect in this condition.

The treatment consists in keeping the patient at rest, particularly if there is fever. The application of heat may also help to relieve the pain. This can be done with hot, wet dressings, with an electric heat pad, or hot water bottle.

Injection of Protein

Another form of treatment which is used is to give an injection of some protein, such as boiled milk. This produces fever and eventually aids in overcoming the difficulty.

Dr. Allison also recommends the use of some preparation such as potassium iodide. Some iron-containing preparation may also be administered to overcome the anemia.

If the patient is not relieved by these measures, a mixture containing vitamin B-1 or thiamine and a local anesthetic or pain-relieving preparation is injected in and around the painful area. It has been found that if such injections have been carried out twice weekly for two weeks, the pain is lessened and the duration of the attack shortened to a great extent.

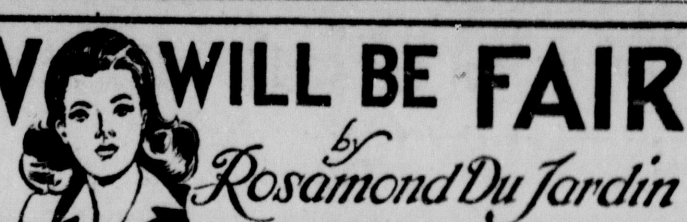

I have mentioned many times the danger of returning to normal activities too soon after an attack of influenza. A patient who has such a condition should remain in bed at complete rest until there has been no fever for at least 48 hours.

The flower of the coffee plant grown in Colombia is delicate white emerging in clusters. It has one funnel-shaped petal with a slender cylindrical tube which is much longer than the cup. It bursts into bloom almost overnight, and its beauty fades almost as fast, for flowering usually lasts only a day or so.

SYNOPSIS

Young Sherry Kent refuses to forego the pleasure of a weekend at the farm of Steve Jeffrey, beloved family friend, even though her mother, Leda, and sister, Val, have changed their plans about going. Leda, attractive widow and highly successful business woman, is dining with Roger Bedloe, vice-president of her firm, and Val with wealthy Wade Carrington, with whom she is trying to forget her heartbreak over the death in action of her fiancé, Rick Kelly. Val is tormented by the knowledge that had it not been for Leda's opposition, she and Rick would have married before he went overseas. Alighting from the train at Brundage, Sherry spies Steve's station wagon parked nearby and climbs in to wait for him. To her surprise, attractive Lex Morelli, who introduces himself as Steve's hired man, takes the wheel. Lex had been in the brokerage business before the war, and upon his release from the Army had decided to get some practical experience before investing in a farm of his own. Warm-hearted, elderly Aunt Pen, who keeps house for Steve, greets Sherry joyously. Later, when Steve arrived, and all had consumed Aunt Pen's delicious dinner, a strange feeling of happiness stole over Sherry. She knew instantly her meeting with Lex was responsible. Her happiness is short lived, however, when Steve tells her Lex is engaged to be married. Lex was troubled, Steve added, because his fiancée was opposed to him buying a farm. During the night Sherry hears Lex pacing the floor and knocks on his door to invite him down to the kitchen for a snack. She tells him of her concern over Val.

"That," Sherry laughed, "was the idea. Remember?"
"Yeah," Lex said. "Well, thanks, Sherry."
"Don't mention it. I enjoyed it, too."
Sherry switched off the light and they made their way upstairs quietly. Lex was yawning as they whispered good night in the hallway. Sherry felt sure he'd sleep now. But she lay awake for a long time, thinking . . .

Val Kent dressed as 'though driven by demons. Finally she surveyed herself in the long mirror on her closet door and found the result satisfactory. The pale gilt of her hair was brushed into a soft chignon low on her white neck. Her hat was little more than a dramatic swirl of coquettish feathers against one cheek. Her plain black dress, infinitely smart with its brief sleeves and peplum, was equally right for cocktails now and dinner with Wade later. Hose almost invisibly sheer, very high heeled pumps. This was the way Wade liked her—it was a Val Rick Colby had never known. Perhaps that was why she was so fond of Wade, so intrigued with him. She dressed a part for her dates with him, she made herself clever and amusing, somewhat shocking, submerging the personality Rick had loved in someone altogether different, someone very gay, very outrageous, a little mad.

With Wade she escaped from herself, which was what she wanted to do.

Val didn't bother to phone Susan Pyle. There would be a crowd swarming in Susan's apartment downstairs, shrieking with laughter, talking like mad, drinking and smoking and making love. Val caught up long suede gloves, her great squashy purse with the heavy gold clasp that matched her bracelets, her platinum fox jacket. She escaped from the emptiness of the apartment that seemed to reach out after her like clutching hands, rang for an elevator in the outer hall. A few minutes later Susan's mulatto maid was admitting her and the sound of voices and laughter came out to meet her in a tide of welcome.

"Hello, darlings," Val called, seeing a half dozen familiar faces as she stood in the doorway. "Room for one more?"

There was always room for one more at Susan's. The gay noisy group absorbed Val. Susan Pyle, so perfectly groomed, as always, that her dark smartness passed for beauty, was wearing a garnet velvet houegown and exotic gold bracelets. Her big black hair, straight and shining, crowned her head in a thick braid. Standing within the ardent circle of a masculine arm, she lifted a languid hand at Val in greeting, said in her odd, hoarse voice, "Hello, pet— you look divine. Get her a drink, someone," and considered her duties as hostess accomplished.

Val considered them accomplished, too. She and Susan understood each other too well, were too good friends, to stand on formality. She took the tall glass someone proffered her, sat on a divan between two amiable cronies and proceeded to forget, in trivial talk and laughter, her jitters of a little while before. A drink had been what she needed—and people around, always people—

Beyond the windows, hidden by Venetian blinds and heavy gold-toned draperies, the dusk deepened from gray to black and pale winter stars came out. But within the warmth and light were constant, although the crowd shifted a good deal. People left and others, equally convivial, arrived to take their places. Val took time out to phone Wade Carrington's apartment and suggest he call for her at Susan's place instead of her own. At a few minutes before seven he arrived. And Val set aside her drink and smiled, her heart quickening with excitement and pleasure, as Wade's dark glance swept the crowded, smoky room in obvious and eager search of her.

Wade Carrington was forty, of average height and compactly built, with a look of muscular power in his broad shoulders and tapering hips. He was possessed of a strong physical magnetism, compounded of vital good health and high spirits, that was very attractive, particularly to women. He was dark of complexion, dark eyes and hair, with a tiny brush of gray at the temples that only increased his mature, good looks. He had enough assurance to get away with almost any course of conduct, however outrageous, a great deal of inherited money and very little moral sense. He had been married three times and three times divorced and all his wives were very beautiful women. Beauty drew him like a magnet. And he had told Val, more times than she could remember during the three months since they had met, that she was the most beautiful girl he had ever known and that he was mad about her.

When their glances met, Wade smiled, too, and came quickly toward Val. He spoke to Susan, to several others, without letting himself be delayed or deflected from his course. Reaching the spot where Val stood, he took her two hands in his and for a long moment let his gaze rest on her face. His look was as deep and warm as a caress and Val felt the heady thrill of it through her whole body. Wade said, "How lovely you look—but then, you always look lovely."

Val thanked him with a smile. Casual talk sprang up around them, including them both in the easy give and take of trivial conversation. Someone put a drink into Wade's hand. But when he had finished it, Val felt the insistent pressure of his fingers on her elbow.

"Let's duck this, shall we?" She nodded and they moved across the room to bid Susan goodbye.

"Leaving already?" she asked huskily, a wicked gleam in her dark eyes. "Well, have fun, pet."

STARS SAY—

For Wednesday, March 19

A SURPRISING turn of events may be the avenue in which some very happy and propitious conditions, will be seen with gratification and growth in whichever field the energies, talents and ambitions may be centered. This in the personal, domestic and social life, with romance and adventure in line for thrills and possible publicity. It would be well to prepare for any sort of contingency, affecting the private or business life.

For the Birthday

Those whose birthday it is are encouraged to anticipate a year of sudden and abrupt change or opportunity in which there may be a pleasant, profitable, progressive and possibly dramatic opening that might involve some sort of public recognition, honors or acclaim. Current business affairs should thrive or be enhanced by this unforeseen turn of events, with welcome change, travel, new associations and enjoyments of long-range gratifications. Be ready for whatever might materialize.

A child born on this day should be well qualified for a progressive, pleasant and adventurous life, with happy changes and perhaps public recognition or preferment.

Large Crowd Sees Girl Scout 'Style Parade'

Spring Fashions Are Modeled In Parish House

"Style Parade" presented by Girl Scouts of Troop No. 8 in the parish house of St. Philip's church Tuesday evening was an outstanding event of the Spring season. The room was filled to capacity, and was well received by the many guests that attended the "Parade".

"Spring Style Parade" was planned in cooperation with the following merchants of Circleville, Smith's, Stiffler's, Penny's, Joffe's, Murphy's, Grant's, Miller-Jones shoe shop and the Economy shoe shop. Spring suits predominated the Spring wardrobes for the junior-miss and woman's styles, tiny children's clothes were all modeled by the girls, who selected their models from members of their own Scout and Brownie troops. In evidence were plaid dresses, with puffed sleeves, and the new bustle back. New "shortie" coats with belted backs were modeled over soft wool frocks, or sheer crepe and gaberdines. Calfskin, faille, and soft fabric bags which fashion the pouch or under arm bag, and the decidedly smart Easter felts, straw and calot hats in many novel and tricky styles were worn. Some suits were tailored, in small pin-checks, others in plain fabrics, and not as severely tailored. Lavishly pleated skirts with bright box jackets, always the favorite of the junior-miss, were presented, along with the cut-away couplet. Gowns designed on simple lines, some revealing the new graceful drapes, were modeled with new costume jewelry, and boku hats. Many cottons were shown with the drawstring neckline, some with the peter-pan collars, and others typical shirt-makers, all with a youthful air and smart to the last degree. Gloves and shoes modeled were of the latest fabrics and cuts.

Mrs. Collis Young was assisted by Miss Doris Schreiner and Miss Ann Curtin, and they introduced each model as she appeared on the stage. Girls that originated the Style Parade and participated in the review included Elaine Baker, Jackie Eitel, Jean Hall, Jean Harrington, Wanda Young, Corrine Lovenshimer, Patsy Quince, Jeanne Spangler and Rosemary Stonerock. Leaders of the group are Mrs. Robert Brehmer Jr., Mrs. Young and Mrs. Tom Bennett.

Models that participated in Tuesday's parade included, Carol Lynn Heiskell, Cynthia Pace, Judy Routzahn, Ann Adkins, Sally Cochran, Penny Young, Shirley Dunlap, Sally Eshelman, Carol Leist, Nancy Ann Barnhill, Suzanne Grant, Judy Barnhill, Frances Heiskell, Margaret Ann Green, Beverly Reid, Judy Goeller, Sandy McAlister, Jacquie Turner, Marlene Steele, Jackie Smith, Sharon Newman, Susan Stocklen, Dotty Renick, Jean Heine and Leva Grant; Mrs. Bennett, Mrs. George Speakman, Mrs. C. W. Hedges and Mrs. Enid Bingham.

At the conclusion of the Style Parade, tea and refreshments were served, with Mrs. William D. Radcliff and Miss Margaret Rooney presiding at the beautiful fully appointed tea table. Various blooming plants were used to decorate the room and stage. Musical program was presented, when Miss Anna Schleyer offered for her piano solo, "Faun" by Chamimade, and "Nocturne" by Chopin. Mrs. Vaden Couch in her vocal solo presented "The Easter Parade", accompanied at the piano by Miss Curtin. In conclusion the "Star Spangled Banner" was sung by the entire assembly. A silver offering was taken.

Miss Jewell Speaks On 'Zane's Trace' For DAR

Mrs. W. L. Mack, vice-regent, presided at the meeting of Pickaway Plains chapter Daughters of the American Revolution, held Tuesday evening in the social rooms of the Presbyterian church. Mrs. Mack was in charge of the meeting due to the illness of Mrs. Charles Pugsley, regent, and Mrs. Martin Cromley, vice-regent.

Meeting opened with the group joining in singing "The Star Spangled Banner". Mrs. Christian Schwartz, chaplain, assisted by Mrs. Mack conducted the ritualistic service and Mrs. R. R. Bales led the salute to the flag. Mrs. Orion King served as recorder in the absence of Mrs. Donald H. Watt, recording secretary. Miss Alice Ada May, treasurer, read letters from the Circleville and Pickaway county Girl Scout associations, the Hillside school, Marlborough, Massachusetts, and the Kate Duncan Smith DAR school, Grant Alabama, thanking the Pickaway Plains chapter for contributions, gifts and services received by them. Mrs. Clark Hunsicker and Mrs. King, delegates, gave reports of the state DAR conference held in Columbus, March 12 through 14th. Mrs. Hunsicker gave her special report as state chairman of the DAR student loan fund. Mrs. Arthur Wagar sang, "Sonny Boy" by Pearl Curran and "Love is All" by Tobias and Tomlin, accompanied by Miss Abbe Mills Clarke.

MRS. WALTER KINDLER, program chairman for the evening, presented Miss Elsie Jewell who gave an interesting and informative paper on "Zane's Trace". She told, "that because Ohio river travel, a century and a half ago, was precarious with sand bars, snags, ice and low water, pioneers that rolled Westward in wagons needed a road on which to travel. In 1796 congress commissioned Ebenezer

Zane to open a passageway across Ohio, linking Kentucky with Washington. It began at Wheeling and ended at the tiny village of Aberdeen, Ohio, across the Ohio river from Maysville, Kentucky.

"Zane's Trace it was called, which followed a mere bridle trail used by buffalo, deer and Indians through the Ohio wilderness. It is virtually impossible to establish today the exact route of the original trace for Zane never gave congress the promised map, and early wagoners cut changes to suit their heavy vehicles. Zane's Trace was a boon to the entire territory. No other 221 miles in American history can boast of so much history and romance. Such places as Zanesville, Lancaster, Amanda, Tarlton, Kingston, Kinnikinnick and Hopetown were founded along the trail. A tavern recommended by stage drivers was that kept by the Nyes of Tarlton. Here in later years Henry Clay and Andrew Jackson were frequent guests. Kingston was a stopping place and the inn was kept by Thomas King."

"Truly Zane's Trace opened up the Ohio country," said Miss Jewell, in concluding her discussion, "and the South and West for pioneers, commerce and ex-tian to Greece, but he was not even called back for consultation until long after Mr. Truman had decided to act.

Also his standing at the state department is reputedly not the highest. Another new deal editor, Mark Ethridge, is in Greece for UN studying guerrilla warfare prospects, which are at the root of the situation because the Russians are supposed to have armed the guerrillas for a Spring campaign to overthrow the government. Indeed, unverifiable rumor has reached official quarters that some of our own lend-lease material is now arming the guerrillas. We shipped this stuff to Yugoslavia, and Tito and Yugoslavia sent the material on to the guerrillas. At any rate, this nation has had a star-studded new deal cast at the top in Greece. But inside information here suggests its influence is far from important. One quasi-official report suggests, indeed, that Porter wrote a letter to a senator demanding that we change our Greek policy to that of the Russians, favoring overthrow of King George. If he did this, his popularity would be ended on the inside here.

All this adds to congressional lack of clarity — except perhaps on one phase. Everyone recognizes Greece needs help and wants to give it. Yet in this unanimous desire, the congressmen are in a somewhat nebulous state. Reporters covering the hearings in both houses heard no figures produced as to how much relief is already being given Greece by us. A Greek relief society has been actively soliciting funds. The churches are conducting a campaign throughout this country for relief, supplanting their campaign of last year.

These voluntary efforts to aid the Greeks has met wholehearted response throughout the nation and must have done much good, yet no one mentioned this in the hearings. The reports, covering same, say Greece was occupied by both Italians and Nazis during the war and her industries were destroyed, so she needs economic help. All apparently took this situation for granted and no detailed understanding of the actual current situation was developed anywhere. (This subject will be concluded in a later column.)

Opinions expressed by the writer in the column are the views of the author and not necessarily those of the Cincinnati Herald.

ECONOMIC CRISIS IN CHINA

Peace in Strife-Torn Nation Largely Up to U. S.

WAR WAIFS—UNRRA food for children in strife-torn Chinese area.

By FREDERICK J. LIPP
Central Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON — The growing economic tension in China, caused by civil war strains, has become, within the past weeks, an acute crisis, one which again reveals the nature of the reactionary one-party rule of the Kuomintang.

All private transactions in gold and foreign currencies have been banned. Private foreign exchange deposits must be put at the disposal of the government. Strikes and lockouts are forbidden. The dreaded secret police have received added powers to administer "justice" for infractions.

This tightening of Kuomintang economic measures appears to be largely an effort to meet conditions for a 500 million-dollar United States loan, without which the government cannot continue the civil war.

While necessary, the maneuver is unlikely to solve the conditions which have brought the crisis to a head. It merely serves to bring to light the dependence of the Chiang government upon United States aid.

Army Is Costly
The roots of the present impasse lie in the political, military and economic structure of the Kuomintang. The Chiang Kai-shek government maintains an army of three million men, the support of which costs the people 300 billion Chinese dollars a month—excluding operating expenses which are calculated at another three billion.

Government administrative costs plus the Kuomintang party machine expenses, which are paid from the national treasury, are estimated at 300 to 400 billion dollars a month. The Chiang government, therefore, is faced with the necessity of raising approximately one trillion (that's 1,000,000,000,000) Chinese dollars a month for expenditures of all kinds.

According to the estimate of a brilliant Chinese economist, in September, 1946, government income, exclusive of internal taxes, amounted, roughly, to 175 billion dollars—less than 20 per cent of Chiang's needs. Where, then, did the remainder come from?

To supply his army Chiang restored the war-time system of tax payments in kind. To replenish his manpower he restored the conscription system. The net result of these measures was to cancel each other out.

To escape conscription, peasants fled to the cities, thus decreasing the already low production of the Chinese farm and making it relatively impossible to collect more than a fraction of taxes from the impoverished farmer.

In 1946 he collected only 3.6 per cent of taxes in kind. Observers feel that the 1947 showing will be even worse. The discrepancy is serious for Chiang. It means that he must buy on the open market to meet the needs of army and government expenses. And for this more cash is needed.

To meet the huge deficit in the past, Chiang took the easy way out and printed more paper money. In 1938 an extra two billion, 300 million dollars was put into circulation. In 1946—four trillion 250 billion!

The resultant inflation, through the years, has finally effected a breakdown in economy, in which neither farm nor factory can function properly.

According to the liberal Shanghai daily, The Wen Hui Pao, dated Dec. 22, 1946, over 1,600 factories and commercial concerns had closed down in that city alone during the last quarter of the year.

In inland China the situation was no better. During the summer of 1946 it is estimated that industrial firms were closing down in Hankow at the rate of one every two days. In October the average was up to 23 a day! In Chungking, 3,000 large and 4,000 small commercial firms went bankrupt during the autumn of '46.

A subsidiary cause of this commercial and industrial collapse was the constant flooding of the Chinese market with American goods. More than 70 per cent of its foreign trade deficit, from January to October, 1946, was for goods from the United States.

Among other remedial steps taken by Chiang in the past was the granting of loans to industrial and commercial concerns by government banks at low rates of interest.

In practice, however, only firms owned and controlled by high government officials were able to obtain such loans.

Ordinary businessmen without the "proper" connections were unable to secure them without paying as much as 70 per cent and 80 per cent bribes and government interest charges. Another of Chiang's measures was government operation of industry and commerce—now declared abandoned.

Under this system the Kuomintang set up companies to carry on industries—such as textiles. It then forced the peasants to sell cotton at a low price.

The finished product was then sold to "private" concerns at prices well below the black market. These firms in turn sold to the consumer at unrestricted prices.

Four Families in Control
Export licenses and export subsidies were handled in the same way. The "private" concerns which reaped the profit of all such ventures were invariably controlled or owned outright by the Chiangs, Soongs, Kungs and Chens—the same families which dominate the government.

Council Studies Abandonment Of City Fire Alarm System

PLEA TO HELP HOUSING HERE MADE BY VET

Guarantee Of Valuation Of Property Remaining Same Proposed

Proposal of abandonment of Circleville's old and badly crippled fire alarm system, and a plea to provide more housing by assuring a no-increased-valuation for 10 years to property owners who desire to convert single dwellings into duplexes, were considered by the city council Tuesday night.

Although the suggestion of discarding the fire alarm system was discussed at length the council took no definite action. The five members present agreed to postpone action until the next regular session scheduled for April 1. In the meantime, council members will attempt to ascertain public sentiment on the question.

Discussion of the matter began when Councilman George L. Crites declared the alarm system should be either repaired or abandoned. Councilman Ray Anderson offered a motion to refer to the safety committee.

Fire Chief Talmer Wise told council the present situation was dangerous and that something should be done. It was pointed out during the round-the-room discussion that the question has been before council for a year. Finally Councilman Crites said he favored abandonment of the system.

COUNCILMAN Ray Cook, who was selected to serve as chairman in the absence of Councilman William M. Reid, president pro tem, suggested deferring action until the next meeting.

As the lone defender of the alarm system Councilman Boyd Horn at this point arose and said he was opposed to abandonment. He said that what the "people want" is more alarm boxes in proper working condition. He added that "if this council votes to abandon the alarm system we will probably have to sneak down alleys in order to get home."

The proposal aimed to lessen the housing shortage was made to council by John Robinson, a Navy veteran and operator of the Ringgold Dairy, who attended the meeting as a spectator.

ASSERTING that Circleville's housing situation is very bad Robinson urged council to take appropriate action.

"Building and remodeling of houses are being retarded", Robinson told council, "because many property owners fear higher property valuations with higher taxes to pay."

Robinson suggested that such property owners be given a guarantee that the valuations of properties remodeled into duplexes to provide more housing will not be increased for a period of at least 10 years. If this were done, he declared, many single dwellings in Circleville would be made into duplexes.

Mayor Ben. H. Gordon told council that in his opinion it had no authority to give such a guarantee to property owners and that the matter of fixing valuations was up to the Pickaway county budget committee.

Council took no action on Robinson's proposal.

ATTORNEY Joseph Adkins, special counsel for the city in its dispute with the Ohio Water Service company, officially informed council that the water controversy was ended Tuesday although several minor "tag ends" mostly involving expenses remain to be cleared up. He suggested appointment of a committee to meet with Attorney Tom A. Renick, Attorney Adkins, City Solicitor George Gerhardt, and Utilities Manager Irvin Leist relative to taking care of the remaining details. It was explained that the city owes minor sums for engineering and legal services, advertising, bonding company fees, etc., and that payment can be made from a reserve fund of $40,000 which has been kept intact.

Council voted unanimously to attend the conference, to be held next week, as a committee of the whole.

An offer from the J. H. Butts company, Chillicothe, to install two new overhead doors, 10 by 10 feet, at the fire station on East Franklin street, at a cost of $652 for materials and labor, was referred to the safety committee and service committee with instructions to report at the April meeting of council. This action was by unanimous vote after Councilman Crites said he thought the price was too high.

Councilman Anderson said city firemen need linoleum and chairs at the fire station and that the total cost has been calculated at $70. Council directed Solicitor Gerhardt to draft the necessary legislation for presentation at the next council session.

CITY TREASURY balance is $69,019.83 according to a financial report covering the first 18 days of March and submitted by Councilman Crites as chairman of the finance committee. The report, approved by unanimous vote, listed: General fund, receipts $693.79, expenditures $2,059.53, balance $11,176.26; sewage disposal fund, receipts $375, expenditures $728.57, balance $2,356.85; library fund, receipts none, expenditures $403.36, balance $4,319.61; auto street repair fund, receipts $55, expenditures $212.40, balance $3,388.78; gasoline tax fund, receipts $2,256, expenditures $747.03, balance $1,758.89; hos-

THREE FILMS ON 'FAMILY NIGHT' AT EUB CHURCH

Lenten "Family Night" service of the First Evangelical United Brethren church, East Main street, will be held Thursday night, beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

Opening the program Sol Hoopi, a native Hawaiian, will present a gospel hymn film, "Musical Moments with Sol Hoopi". Hawaiian instruments will be used in this film.

Devotions will be in charge of the Willing Workers and the Philathea Sunday school classes. Children from the primary department will usher.

Special juvenile film of the program will be the parable of Jesus, "The Door to Heaven." This story portrays the truth that there is only one way for man to enter the kingdom of God and that is through Jesus Christ.

Feature of the evening is the third episode in the life of St. Paul, entitled, "Faith Triumphant". This story, lifted from Acts 21:26-26:32, is the portrayal of St. Paul's arrest at Jerusalem and his imprisonment in Caesarea.

Closing the program Jesus' parable adapted from St. Luke 10:25-37, "The Good Samaritan", will be shown.

At the close of the service, the pastor, the Rev. Carl L. Wilson, extends an invitation for special

GAMBLING
AIRED IN
COUNCILMayor Gordon Defends Police
In Lengthy Discussion
Of Pay Boost Bid

Defending the police department against charges of lax law enforcement Mayor Ben H. Gordon told members of the city council in session Tuesday night that "as to gambling, Circleville is cleaner than any town in this area."

Renewing his attack, first made at the Jan. 7 meeting when he charged police with failure to curb gambling and failure to enforce traffic regulations, Councilman George L. Crites declared at Tuesday night's session that two police officers — not named — informed him that Police Chief William F. McCrady warned them that he would suspend them if they raided a downtown gambling place.

Following lengthy discussion of the police department and law enforcement the five members of council present at the meeting voted unanimously to refer the matter to the safety committee. That committee is composed of Councilmen Ray Cook, chairman, William M. Reid and John Eshelman. Councilman Reid was absent Tuesday night.

ACCUSATIONS against the police and the ensuing discussion were precipitated when Council Clerk Fred Nicholas read a letter signed by all seven members of the police department. The letter requested a salary increase of $20 a month for each police officer and reminded council that no answer had been received to an identical request presented to council a few months ago. The letter was signed by Chief McCrady and Patrolmen Alva H. Shasteen, George Green, Elmer Merriam, John W. McGinnis, Roderick E. List, and Samuel Turney Ross.

Councilman Crites arose and commented that police were entitled to more pay, but that the city had only $11,000 in the general fund with no more cash in sight until mid-May.

Councilman Ray Anderson said the patrolmen now receive $125 a month plus a bonus of $35 a month and he declared they deserved more money.

At this juncture Councilman Crites offered a motion to refer the request to the safety committee. The motion was promptly seconded by Councilman Eshelman.

THE LENGTHY discussion which followed was launched by Councilman Cook who said that as a member of the safety committee (Continued on Page Two)

Russian Press Attacks
Marshall For First Time

MOSCOW, March 19 — Secretary of State George C. Marshall was subjected to an attack by the Russian press today for the first time since he assumed his post as chief of United States foreign affairs.

The Communist newspaper Pravda referred to him in critical tones in a thinly-veiled attack on a recent statement he made on democratization in the big four council of foreign ministers.

Pravda charged that real democracy does not exist in the American occupation zone of Germany where political "minorities" cannot get representation unless they receive more than 10 percent of the vote.

Indicative of the "gloves off" attitude which is developing between Russia and the western power at the conference, Pravda sarcastically stated that Marshall "deemed it necessary to dedicate part of his speech to general discussion about democracy."

THE COMMUNIST organ declared that there is "a great difference between the theory of democracy and its practice," and added: "Marshall demands that freely organized political parties should (Continued on Page Two)

EXTENSION OF
EXPORT CONTROL

WASHINGTON, March 19 — President Truman told congress today that wartime export controls must be extended for one year or the United States will be unable to fulfill its international responsibilities.

The chief executive declared in a special message to congress:

"This government must continue its control over the export of products in critically short supply here and abroad, in order to protect the economy of the United States as well as to discharge our international responsibilities."

Mr. Truman asked that authority derived from the export control act be extended for one year beyond the present expiration date, next June 30. He added:

"Delay would prove unsettling to business and would handicap the planning and execution of our food and other export programs."

ASUNCION, March 19 — The Paraguayan government put in to effect today wartime emergency measures authorized by the official declaration that the nation was in a "state of war."

The declaration was issued by government headquarters at Asuncion.

It charged that the revolution, which has swept from Concepcion to the Brazilian border, is led by Communists who are receiving support from Uruguay and Bolivia.

UMW CHIEFTAIN
WITHDRAWS BID
FOR WALKOUTCoal Production At Least
Until June 30 Seen As
Order Is Followed

WASHINGTON, March 19 — John L. Lewis today cancelled his March 31 deadline for another coal walkout by reinstating the United Mine Workers wage agreement with the government.

Lewis sent a letter to Interior Secretary J. A. Krug informing him that the union notice of last November terminating the Krug-Lewis contract "is hereby unconditionally withdrawn."

The UMW president acted in accordance with the decision of the supreme court which directed withdrawal of the contract termination notice.

The high tribunal, in upholding contempt convictions against Lewis and the UMW reduced the $3,500,000 fine against the union to $700,000 on condition that the termination notice was withdrawn.

LEWIS' letter to Krug was only three lines long. It said: "The notice of Nov. 15, 1946, terminating the Krug - Lewis agreement as of Nov. 20, 1946, is hereby unconditionally withdrawn."

It was this notice which sent the miners out on a 17-day work stoppage last Fall and brought drastic government legal action to end a paralyzing shutdown of coal production.

THE GOVERNMENT obtained an injunction in federal district court against the walkout. Lewis refused to comply and was cited for contempt of court.

In appealing to the supreme court, he issued back-to-work orders to the miners last Dec. 7 and told them to continue on the job until midnight, March 31.

Today, Lewis advised the miners as follows: "The instruction of Dec. 7, 1946, to members of the UMW to continue production of bituminous coal until March 31, 1947, is hereby unconditionally withdrawn and all the members of the UMW are hereby instructed that said Krug-Lewis agreement is in full force and effect until final determination of the basic issues arising under the agreement."

"These actions have been taken in full accordance with the orders and directions of the district court of the United States for the District of Columbia, as (Continued on Page Two)

TWO CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND, March 19 — A coroner's verdict was expected today in the second apparent suicide of a Cleveland patrolman within 15 hours.

Police said Casimir F. Siat, 32, shot himself in the head with his service revolver last night in the basement of his home. Assigned to a zone car, Siat had worked yesterday and left home for a short while after supper. Police found a piece of paper with the single word, "darling," written on it.

Earlier yesterday, Patrolman Orville A. Dew, 32, of the accident prevention bureau, had shot himself in the living room of his home.

COLUMBUS, O., March 19 — An Ohio State University rural economics professor told a farm and home week audience on the Columbus campus today that "farm prices have hit the top."

Prof. Virgil R. Wertz explained that the current increase in farm income is only temporary. He said that the overall trend is downward, although he predicted that the general national income for 1947 will reach last year's level.

Farm Organizations Will Save U. S., Graham Says

COLUMBUS, O., March 19 — The grand old man of Ohio State University's annual Farm and Home week, who is also its founder, returned to the Ohio State University campus today predicting that the continued success of farm organizations and gatherings will insure the United States against "cockeyed isms."

A. B. Graham, Columbus, the first director of agricultural extension work in America, sat in his former campus office today and declared on the 35th anniversary of its founding there that Farm and Home week will never reach a peak, numerically or otherwise.

As science develops, this institution gives the farmer a closer acquaintance with scientific achievement which can be applied to farming for better living, he told reporters.

The 79-year-old patriarch of modern farming stressed the value of farm life and farm organizations as character builders and antidotes for juvenile delinquency. He said: "When a boy raises a pig, he raises more than a pig—he raises himself. Through responsibility he develops personality."

"It is the slums of our cities which are making our social problems, not the farmers. There are 35 rural counties in Ohio which do not have a single person in the boys industrial school, the Mansfield reformatory, or the Ohio penitentiary."

OHIO HIGHWAYS
OUT OF DATE,
SENATE IS TOLD

COLUMBUS, O., March 19 — Ohio's highways have failed to maintain pace with the demands of industry, the senate highways committee was warned today.

D. E. Patterson, county engineer of Lorain county, told the committee that the state is faced with a traffic jam that will drive industry from Ohio unless super-highways are constructed to alleviate the condition. He was appearing in support of the Winter bill to establish a turnpike commission authorized to construct super toll highways, similar to the famed Pennsylvania turnpike.

Sen. Ralph Winter (R-Lodi) the bill's sponsor, explained at the first hearing on the measure that the bill merely permitted the establishment of the five-member commission, and that construction of the super toll roads would not cost Ohio one cent. The cost, he said, would be borne by private interests investing in the toll commission bonds.

TALMADGE
OUSTED
BY COURT

ATLANTA, GA., March 19 — Georgia supreme court today handed down a historic 5-2 decision installing Lieut. Gov. M. E. Thompson as the state's chief executive.

The decision ousts Herman Talmadge from office and ends one of the nation's strangest struggles for political power.

Talmadge immediately vacated the gubernatorial suite in the capitol.

Written by Presiding Justice W. H. Duckworth, the majority opinion of the court held that the general assembly was not qualified to elect Talmadge to the office.

The high tribunal flatly contradicted one of the Talmadge contentions in the case, and stated:

"The courts have jurisdiction" regardless of the fact that "political questions" also were involved in the case.

Government Troops Sweep
Into Yenan In Surprise
Offensive Move

NANKING, March 19—Chinese government troops drove today into Yenan, capital of Communist China, in a swift surprise offensive that may mark a turning point in the civil war.

The city in northwest China, for many years the nerve center of the powerful Chinese red regime, was entered by nationalist forces at 10 o'clock this morning.

Announcement of this victorious thrust into the heart of China's Communist - controlled territory was made by the central government in Nanking.

THE TERSE official bulletin stated today that the Nationalists had penetrated into the Red capital and the time of their entry. No further details were given.

It was not yet known in Nanking whether Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's government legions had completed the capture of Yenan. Nor was the extent of Communist resistance—if any—known.

LONDON, March 19—A Reuters dispatch from Nanking today quoted an official announcement saying that Chinese government troops have captured the city of Yenan, for 10 years Communist stronghold in Chensi province of northern China.

POLICE CHECKING

DAHLIA MURDER

ST. LOUIS, March 19 — St. Louis police today were checking the story of Melvin Bailey, 23, that he killed Elizabeth Short, "The Black Dahlia", in Los Angeles Jan. 12 or 13.

Detective Chief Leonard Murphy said that Bailey made a statement to police last night, giving details of the murder.

Bailey, who told police he is a former Marine and Army Air Force member, was arrested Feb. 12 by Missouri highway patrolmen on a stolen auto charge.

In Los Angeles, homicide Capt. Jack Donahoe regarded Bailey's confession with skepticism. He pointed to several discrepancies in Bailey's story.

Flu, Cold Epidemic Blamed
For Closing Of Grades,
High School Here

Absenteeism caused by severe colds and influenza compelled the closing of all Circleville public schools at noon Wednesday for the rest of the week by order of the board of education.

The board announced that the schools will reopen Monday morning.

Out of a total enrollment of 1,492 in the high school and the five elementary schools, it was stated, 335 boys and girls were absent from classes Wednesday morning.

THIS INCREASED to 468 the total number of school absentees in Circleville and in Harrison township where the Duval and South Bloomfield schools remained closed.

The Pickaway county school board said the other 13 rural schools remained open although there was heavy absenteeism in many sections, notably in Ashville and in Monroe township.

Schools all over Ohio are closing daily because of the epidemic of "flu" cases. In some areas schools have been closed for several days.

THE SITUATION brought a warning from State Health Director Roger E. Heering.

"Stay out of crowds to avoid influenza" was the advice of Heering.

Dr. Heering said that if a person should contract the flu, the best remedy is to go to bed immediately and call a physician. He listed the symptoms of the illness as fatigue, lack of appetite, aches, chills, dizziness, nausea and a cold.

COUNTY HEALTH commissioners were advised today by Dr. Heering to keep schools open during the current influenza wave unless absences become (Continued on Page Two)

HEMMING SENT
CHECK CHARGE

COLUMBUS, O., March 19 — Robert Haine Hemming, 42, accused of abducting a 20-year-old Ohio State University coed on New Year's Day, began serving a six to 18 year term in the state penitentiary today on another charge.

Hemming was sentenced in Franklin county common pleas court on six counts of passing worthless checks. He had pleaded guilty to the charge when arraigned in January.

Meanwhile, Prosecutor Ralph J. Bartlett indicated a kidnap charge against Hemming would be "held in abeyance."

Hemming is accused of kidnapping Mary Virginia Kimberly, daughter of an Ohio State professor. The pair disappeared New Year's afternoon and was the object of a two-day search before the girl returned home.

mittie he had been rather unfamiliar with city finances and therefore disliked the idea of referring the salary increase request to that committee.

"This matter should be discussed at a safety committee meeting and it should then be taken up with the finance committee," asserted Councilman Eshelman. "I don't like the idea of paying out more money for a job that is not being done any too well now, and we should gain a working knowledge of the operation of the police department. We should have better police service in Cincinnati. The service should be improved and then we can pay for the improved service."

Councilman Cook remarked that "it is not within the power of this council to tell the police department how it should be run. All we can do is make recommendations."

To this Councilman Eshelman retorted that "they are now asking for a salary increase and therefore council is now in a bargaining position. The police department is lax and I am not in favor of the salary increase."

AT THIS point Mayor Gordon arose among the spectators. Resenting Councilman Eshelman's remarks, Mayor Gordon asserted that the police department "is more efficient now than for years."

Councilman Crites declared that "two or three weeks ago I asked two policemen what they were going to do about gambling and they said they knew all about gambling operations, that they started to close up one downtown place, and that the police chief ordered them not to and threatened to suspend them if they disobeyed."

Councilman Crites further asserted that a Columbus woman recently called him on the telephone and complained that every weekend her husband squandered his earnings "in Cincinnati gambling joints."

"McCrae seems to be running the police department to suit himself," Councilman Crites declared.

"Probably the police personnel is satisfactory," Councilman Eshelman commented, "if properly directed, but traffic rules are not being enforced."

MAYOR GORDON again stepped forward. He said "this all comes back to the fact the police department lacks men. As to gambling, Cincinnati is cleaner than any town in this area."

"Years ago," the mayor continued, "there were five numbers games in operation in Cincinnati. You can never stamp out gambling entirely. Some people like to gamble, some like a poker game in their homes, some like to drink — and some like to chase women. I don't believe you want to attempt to reform Cincinnati. I believe that what little gambling there is in Cincinnati cannot be stamped out. The people elected me mayor three times and during my time in office I have received not one complaint about gambling."

Councilman Boyd Horn suggested that instead of more stringent enforcement of parking rules the enforcement should be more lenient for the benefit of the city in general and downtown merchants and rural motorists in particular.

Harry Foster filed an answer Wednesday in Pickaway county common pleas court, denying the allegations contained in the divorce suit filed against him Jan. 29 by Mrs. Nevada Foster who charged gross neglect of duty. Foster's answer alleges that he established a home three times and in each instance his wife became dissatisfied and sold the furniture, and that she is now "keeping company" with another man. I see by the papers that we need another starting pitcher and a hard-hitting outfielder. Do you know any club that doesn't?

DILTZ-CLIFTON TRIAL DELAYED; WITNESS SICK

Illness of an important out-of-town witness for the state has compelled postponement of the trial of Orin Diltz, 24, and George Clifton, 23, which had been scheduled to begin Monday before a Pickaway county common pleas jury, it was announced Wednesday by County Prosecutor Kenneth Robbins.

Diltz and Clifton are scheduled to face trial jointly under an indictment charging them with the $1,300 burglary of the American Legion club at 136 East Main street. The robbery occurred the night of Nov. 9, 1946.

Prosecutor Robbins and Judge William D. Radcliff said a new date for the trial has not been set.

Diltz is now in the Ohio Penitentiary and Clifton is free under $25,000 bond.

A jury on Feb. 5 found Diltz guilty of grand larceny in the looting of the parked car of Vaden Couch and Judge Radcliff sentenced Diltz to one to seven years in the state prison.

A jury on Feb. 22 acquitted Clifton of the $333 burglary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars club at 217 North Court street.

Early in January the grand jury returned five indictments against Diltz and four against Clifton.

ATOMIC ENERGY COMMISSION OF UN STUDY PLAN

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., March 19—Twelve nations representing the 55 members of the United Nations will sit down together today as the atomic energy commission and try once more to chain atomic forces into a safeguarding global treaty.

The meeting, first of its kind since completion of the atomic energy commission's report and approval by all members but Russia and Poland of the inclusive Bauch plan, begins this afternoon under the monthly rotating chairmanship of Soviet Delegate Andrei Gromyko.

The commission is composed of the nations currently members of the security council, with Canada added. On the agenda is the staggering assignment to formulate an atomic treaty and in the next six months to draft another report on atomic energy for submission to the security council.

23 TO 26 PERCENT INCOME TAX CUT AGREEMENT NEAR

WASHINGTON, March 19—Republican members of the house ways and means committee tentatively agreed today on a tax cut of either 23 or 26 percent for low-income taxpayers.

Such a reduction would boost the proposed tax cut for the small earnings group to more than two billion dollars.

Colin F. Stam, chief of the congressional tax staff was requested to estimate the revenue loss on the two tax decreases, applicable to taxpayers with only $1,000 or 2,000 of taxable income over and above existing exemptions and deductions.

BIG FOUR DEPUTIES TO STUDY ITALIAN COLONIES

LONDON, March 19—Britain was revealed today to have invited big four foreign ministers deputies to London to discuss the future of the Italian colonies.

A foreign office spokesman said his majesty's government sent invitations to the United States, Russia and France for the deputies to meet in the British capital shortly after Easter for the discussions.

He added that the United States already has accepted the invitation.

UMW CHIEFTAIN WITHDRAWS BID FOR WALKOUT

affirmed by the supreme court of the United States on March 6, 1947.

"The foregoing is for your official information."

LEWIS acted less than 24 hours before a formal mandate of the supreme court was scheduled to go into effect.

The high court's order—formally directing Lewis to withdraw the termination notice—was set for issuance tomorrow.

Lewis would have had until March 25 to comply with the mandate.

The mine chief's action apparently insures uninterrupted coal production at least until June 30, when federal seizure of the bituminous industry ends, barring "wildcat" stoppages by his 400,000 miners.

In his notice to the miners, Lewis stated that the government-UMW contract would remain in effect until final determination of the basic issues arising under the agreement.

This referred to the dispute over whether the UMW had a legal right last November to terminate the Krug-Lewis pact.

This issue still is before Federal District Judge T. Alan Goldsborough for determination. The government seeks a declaratory judgment to the effect that the Krug-Lewis agreement cannot be reopened or terminated for the full period of government possession of the mines.

His advisers say his offensive thrusts in this direction will become more forceful and penetrating from now on.

Farm Organizations Will Save U. S., Graham Says

sion work in Ohio, compared the current 35th farm and home week with the first in the state in 1913.

Headquarters for the affair then, as now, was located in Townshend hall on the university campus. Registration then totalled 140 persons as compared with the thousands of recent years.

Graham generated the idea that the university's college of agriculture ought to be doing something objective for Ohio farmers, in addition to giving them an occasional lecture.

As early as 1908, he conceived the forerunner of today's farm and home program by bringing up-to-date farm information and demonstrations directly to the rural areas by rail in the days when private transportation was largely limited to the horse and buggy.

MARSHALL TO TAKE OFFENSIVE

Hitler's regime will be labelled as Nazis.

Sources close to Gen. Marshall emphasized that in the opening days of the big four conference the chief American delegate deliberately refrained from answering charges and critical inferences levelled against American policy with respect to post-war treatment of Germany.

He did so because he wanted to avoid wasting time on politics and minor matters. Now he feels that an important stage of the conference is approaching, and his associates say he is determined to fight back against what he considers unwarranted and misleading charges.

MARSHALL'S sharp rebuttal yesterday of Molotov's allegation that the United States and Great Britain already have taken more than ten billion dollars worth of reparations out of Germany in the form of gold, patents and inventions marked his initial foray into the ultimate of plain-speaking.

His advisers say his offensive thrusts in this direction will become more forceful and penetrating from now on.

SCHOOL FUNDS ARE STUDIED BY SENATE GROUP

Bill To Aid Subdivisions Introduced; Bounty Measure Passes

COLUMBUS, O., March 19—The Ohio senate education committee, which already has recommended an 85-billion-dollar-a-year school foundation program, today considered Governor Herbert's budget recommendation for an additional $6,000,000 in increases for the first half of this year.

Herbert proposed that the six millions be apportioned to school districts on the basis of 40 per cent of the regular May 31 allocation, which will use up the final half of the 30 millions earmarked for schools in the partial appropriations bill.

Meanwhile, Sen. Kyle Brooks (R - Cincinnati) declared he would insist on a hearing for the bill of the Cincinnati senatorial delegation, which would give school teachers a $14,500,000 pay increase in each of the years 1947 and 1948.

Education committee chairman Virgil Cramer said it would be impossible to hear the measure before a week from next Tuesday, since the committee schedule was completed until that date.

MEANWHILE, the house conservation committee referred to a five-man subcommittee the Mooney bill to establish a new state department of mines and mining.

No opposition to the proposal has appeared in two previous hearings, but Rep. L. P. Mooney (R-Hocking) told the committee that there were certain details yet to be worked out and asked that a subcommittee be appointed.

The house yesterday passed, 103-12, an emergency bill to make permanent the authority of counties to offer a bounty on red and gray foxes.

It also completed legislative passage of the bill of Sen. Fred L. Adams (R-Bowling Green) to provide for the creation of a reserve list for the state guard and naval militia. However, the bill goes back to the senate for concurrence in a floor amendment.

THE HOUSE defeated the bill of Rep. J. D. Simpson (R-Hardin) to provide for the registration with the state division of vital statistics all marriages, divorces or annulments. The bill received only 53 votes, with 70 needed for passage.

The senate passed unanimously the proposed constitutional amendment to provide that a lieutenant-governor-elect shall become governor if the governor-elect dies before taking office.

The senate also passed an emergency bill to permit county boards of education to accept donations and purchase war surplus supplies for local boards.

introduced a bill which embodies the major portions of Governor Herbert's program to aid local subdivisions. It would:

1. Return to local subdivisions the 14 millions a year collected in intangible taxes on securities and deposits.
2. Repeal the $5,400,000 state admissions tax so local governments can enter this field.
3. Return to the subdivisions the state's present one-half share of the cigaret dealers' license tax, amounting to one-half millions a year.
4. Specifically authorize cities to levy a tax on consumers gas, light and telephone bills.

If the bill is enacted, it will mean a cut in the local governments' sales tax allocation will be in order, since Herbert recommended the intangibles tax or a sales tax increase to 24 millions a year, but not both.

Hence, if the Reiners-Brooks bill is enacted, a cut in sales tax allocations to about ten millions a year is likely.

Weak, Watery Blood Blamed for Making Men and Women Look and Feel Older THAN THEIR YEARS

How do you feel at the end of a day? Is that old time pep and drive lacking? Have you checked-up on your blood strength lately? Thousands now regain glowing good looks and vitality through the release of vibrant energy to every muscle, fibre, cell.

Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a general run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloating and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on SSS Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. ## TRUMAN FLIES TO WASHINGTON AFTER VACATION

President Ready To Plunge Into International Problems Again

U. S. SUBMARINE BASE, KEY WEST, Fla. March 19 — President Truman, rested and refreshed from a brief vacation in the sun, returns to Washington today to tackle the monumental task of guiding the nation through still uncharted and uncertain international seas.

The chief executive ends his Florida sojourn at 2 p. m. when he again boards the presidential special plane, "Sacred Cow", for the thousand mile return flight to the nation's capital.

He is due back in Washington for early dinner, arriving a little before 7 p. m. at the ATC terminal.

Mr. Truman has reported great benefits in restored mental and physical vitality from his week's rest. He is deeply tanned. The spring is back in his step. The President was worn out from two strenuous weeks—one in Mexico—before he came here. He has snapped back like a rubber band.

THE PRESIDENT'S week in southern Florida has been a rest cure. He has kept in touch with Washington and with Moscow, as well as other world capitals, by the finest means of communications in the modern world. He has had with him the key men of his White House staff to aid and advise him.

But his main objective has been getting a needed rest. This mission has been accomplished. The president looks in great shape from his many hours in the sun, loafing and fishing, and long nights of sleep.

Today, he returns to the White House to plunge back into the international maelstrom.

ONE OF the first and most pressing matters that will come to his attention will be pressing through congress his request for urgent and immediate aid to Greece and Turkey to save them from encroachment of Communism.

Mr. Truman will talk with Paul Porter, who has been to Greece to study Greek economic conditions.

The President also will interview the United States ambassadors to Greece and Turkey, who have been called back to Washington to report and consult on the situations in those two countries.

Mr. Truman, according to reports reaching Key West, also is now faced with some developing opposition in the congress on the part of Republicans to his program of aid to small countries threatened by Communist expansionist policies.

The President is expected to throw his full energies into the fight to push his recommendations through the congress.

SOCIETY

Missionary Society Of St. Paul Meets

Thirteen members of Woman's Missionary society of St. Paul Evangelical United Brethren church of Washington township held their meeting in the home of Mrs. Ralph DeLong. Mrs. Ruth Leist, president, was in charge of the short business session and devotional period.

Piano prelude "I Love to Tell the Story" opened the session which is the theme song of the society for the year. Scripture verses were read by various members which concerned our relations with those of other races. An interesting feature of the meeting was that the members came dressed to represent those of other races and localities that are served by missionaries of the EUB church. This group includes China, Japan, Africa, New Mexico and Kentucky.

Mrs. Zelma Richter presented the program which consisted of two Negro spirituals, "Lord Lock down Upon Me" and "I Just Keep Living Along" which were sung by Mrs. Larson. Mrs. Maud Hedges read "Poor Lil' Lamb" and "Little Brown Baby", poems written by Paul Lawrence Dunbar. Readings were given by Ethel Marshall, Sylvia Leist, Ida Warner and Mildred Leist.

Mrs. Curl Honored At Birthday Party

Mrs. L. W. Curl, Town street, was guest of honor at a surprise birthday party, held Sunday in the home of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Amon Antriam, Columbus. Twenty-five relatives and close friends were invited to the affair, in celebration of Mrs. Curl's birthday anniversary.

Dining room was decorated in pink and white appointments, and on the table were two large birthday cakes, topped with burning candles. The cakes were gifts from both of her sisters, the hostess and Mrs. H. Heminger. Buffet luncheon was served, followed by a social afternoon, when the guests enjoyed games.

Salem WSCS Meets With Mrs. Harral

Mrs. Simon Harral, Pickaway township, lent the hospitality of her home Thursday afternoon for the meeting of members of the Salem Woman's Society of Christian Service, with Mrs. Edgar Harral assistant hostess.

Mrs. Ross Courtright, president, opened the meeting with a silent prayer for Mrs. Charles Baldoser and Mrs. Philip Davis, who were absent due to serious illness. Theme for the program was, "Thou art our Father" Mrs. Alva Dyer and Mrs. Harry Sharrett conducted the devotional period, which was followed by the group singing "Breath on Me, Breath of God". Mrs. Fairy Alkire discussed, "Children and their Churches". A committee was appointed to supervise the redecoration of the church. In this group are Mrs. Alkire, Mrs. Jesse Hildebrand and Mrs. Edgar Harral. Personal get-well messages were sent, Mrs. Davis and Mrs. Baldoser. Holiday banks were collected. Mrs. Hildebrand reported that $21.25 was received from the hen donation.

St. Patrick's day program was presented by, Mrs. Sharrett and Mrs. Elmer Dodd. Miss Rosemary Green and Miss Gilyon were guests at the meeting, and presented, "My Wild Irish Rose" and "Whispering Hope" in their vocal duets. With the hymn "We Give Thee but Thine Own" and a prayer by the group closed the program. Hostess served refreshments to the 30 members and guests present. April meeting will be in the home of Mrs. Clarence Huffer, Pickaway township.

MRS. SHANE HOSTESS

Good Samaritan Class Has Meeting

Members of the Good Samaritan class of the Church of the Nazarene met Friday evening in the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Lake, South Pickaway street, for their regular monthly meeting. Mrs. Lake was in charge of the devotionals and Mrs. Hattie White, president, conducted the business session.

Meeting opened as the group joined in singing, "What a Friend we have in Jesus", which was followed by a prayer by the Rev. Roy E. Wolford. Charles Mumaw gave a report of the plans for the Sunrise services for Easter, which will be sponsored by the Good Samaritan class. Discussions were held, concerning a piano and chimes for the church.

Twenty members and visitors were present for the monthly session. During the social hours the group conducted two contests. Next meeting will be in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Loring Allen, Elm avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Bricker and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bricker, Urbana, were Sunday guests of Mrs. Nancy Long and daughter, Laura, near Five Points.

Youth Fellowship Meets In Church

Members of the Youth Fellowship of Five Points met Sunday at the Christian church. Session opened by the group singing, "We've a Story to Tell to the Nations", which was followed by the Lord's prayer in unison.

Ruth Long submitted the secretary's report and Sue Neff read the treasurer's report. The Rev. Mr. Weller of the Five Points Methodist church, spoke to the group. Sue Neff presented the Bible story which was followed by a round-table discussion. Group will have Easter practice Sunday afternoon, March 23, between the hours of 2 and 4. The next planned meeting will be March 30 in the Methodist church at 6:30 p. m. Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

WRITER RANKS CARDINALS ONE OF BEST TEAMS

Manager Dyer Has Everybody
Back From World Series
Winning Squad

BY LAWTON CARVER
INS Sports Editor

NEW YORK, March 19—There will come a time when people looking around for great ball clubs to talk about will say what about those St. Louis Cardinals? When they ask that question they could have in mind the pennant winning Cardinals of the Dizzy Dean era or they could be thinking of these Cardinals of today.

I recently mentioned that the Cleveland Indians might have the best infield next season. With Joe Gordon playing an acrobatic second base and Lou Boudreau a spectacular shortstop the Indians almost certainly will have the best so-called key-stone combination.

But the Cardinals look like the best all-around baseball club, including spirit.

What the Cardinals did to the Boston Red Sox last season in the World Series will never be forgotten by anybody who witnessed the spectacle.

HERE WAS an inspired baseball club which didn't boast of inspiration alone. These players had everything to go with it. They could play the game. They also had a nice-talking leader in Manager Eddie Dyer who contributed a good share of the brainwork evident in the series.

In case you have forgotten here is the lineup for the Cardinals last season and now:

AS FOR pitchers, Manager Dyer has Murray Dickson, Howie Pollet, and Cat Brecheen as spearheads with Johnny Beazley and Red Munger to help out, not to mention a seeming score of others from the farms.

I'm not picking the Cardinals yet. But I would hate to be forced to pick against them before some real stand-out comes along. Where is the stand-out—unless it is the Cards themselves?

ASHVILLE KP, ROBTOWN CLASH IN CAGE SCRAP

Robtown Stock Farm and Ashville KP cage teams will resume their rivalry Thursday night in the feature game of the City Industrial league program at Roll and Bowl.

These two rivals will be battling for the right to reach the final playoff for the championship of the league. Each lost once in second round play and each won in playoff games last week. The winner will meet Blue Ribbon Dairy, first round winner, for the season's title.

Preceding this game, which is set for 8:30 p. m., will be a game between two good girls teams from Columbus. Clashing at 7:30 p. m. will be Farm Bureau and Linden Church of Christ teams.

During the Middle Ages March 25 was considered the first day of the new year by most Christian people.

Brief Facts About Class B Finalists

COLUMBUS, O., March 19 — Thumbing the Class B state high school tournament teams.

COLUMBIANA—Claims best record of any tourney team, A or B—only one defeat in 24 games. That was at hands of Salem, a Class A school that lost only one regular season game. Clippers have scored 66 victories in 70 regular season games over a four year period. Columbian's tournament opener Friday with Corning will match two highest scoring teams to reach Columbus—Corning has averaged 53 points, Columbian 54.

Clipper coach is Johnny Cabas, product of Mt. Union, same college that produced Ashtabula's Bob Ball in Class A. This is Columbian's fourth state tournament appearance. Lost to Northridge in 1945 finals. Lee Thomas, star forward, was INS All-Ohio Class B selection last week.

CORNING—making third try in state tourney, with 1946-47 record of 29 victories, eight losses. Those 36 games are most any team has played. Just sneaked over 2,000-mark in scoring by two points. Railroaders hail from same Perry county area that produced Glenford and Somerset, champs in 1941 and 1942. Corning coach is Floyd Brown, who received his training at Ohio Northern. Railroaders are built around stocky Jerry Jones, who made INS All-Ohio at a guard position. He's touted as one of the finest individual performers in the state this year.

NEW KNOXVILLE — Represents smallest school among this year's survivors. Enrollment is 38 boys. Coach Roger Stauffer doubles as principal. Auglaize county school grows ten long and lanky, however. Season's record is 24 victories against two defeats. Never reached state finals before.

Current worry is flu siege that has four first stringers on sick list. District and regional tournament observers say corps of eight clever girl cheer-leaders drew nearly as much attention among fans as fine New Knoxville team. New Knoxville athletic association will pay admission for three of them since state passes only five through gates.

PHILLIPSBURG — Another first timer. This Montgomery county quintet has a 28-and-2 mark. Team of short boys with none over six feet. Has only a part-time coach in Raymond P. Humphrey, who matriculated at the University of Illinois. Team has a fine defensive record—opponents averaged only 28 points per contest.

The Milk House

Give much careful thought and planning to the milk house location, construction and equipment. It plays as important part in the production of Grade A milk as does the barn.

The milk house provides a clean, fly free place for straining the milk, a satisfactory cooling unit, a source of hot water and facilities for proper washing and storage of both milk and utensils.

Locate the milk house near as possible to your milking parlor or stable to make it as handy as possible for straining milk in, as well as storing the milk cans and utensils. Good drainage is important and water piped to the milk house is a must.

If you build a milk house inside of your dairy barn careful plans must be followed to comply with regulations. The milk house must not open directly into the barn or milk stable but all doors should open outdoors but may be near the stable door. Put windows in all four sides of the milk house. Be sure of plenty natural light and ventilation.

Contact your dairy field man for plans before building. Be sure...

STRIKE-BREAKING

GOV. DEWEY'S proposal that teachers and other public servants should be forbidden to strike pleases many of his friends, who think that this step will make him president. They recall Calvin Coolidge, who entered the White House because he was supposed to have broken the Boston police strike.

Fate was kind to Gov. Coolidge. Actually the heavy work of suppressing the strike was done by Mayor Andrew J. Peters of Boston. This is made clear by William Allen White, Coolidge's biographer and firm political supporter. Not until it was all over did Coolidge send his famous telegram to President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor, "There is no right to strike against the public safety by anybody, any time, anywhere."

Americans were looking then, as often, for a leader. Coolidge's sharp statement was what they wanted. On this foundation they built up the legend of Coolidge the strikebreaker.

Some candidates think there is one more presidency in Coolidge's policy of economy. Is there also one in his opposition to strikes by public employes

RULE FOR DRIVERS

SHE HAS TAUGHT more than 2,000 people to drive automobiles. The "she" is not a misprint. It refers to a Pittsfield, Mass., white-haired grandmother in her 60's, Mrs. Lulu Lovely, who has been in the business for a quarter of a century and loves it. She has taught all ages from youngsters to men and women in their late 70's. She believes women make better drivers than men—if they're properly taught. Women don't take the chances men do.

This teacher, who drives 15,000 miles a year herself, and never has had an accident, has developed one anti-accident rule—the Golden Rule. All drivers, whatever their sex and age, could afford to observe that one.

The Japanese are said to be planning a church in Tokyo in honor of Gen. MacArthur. It's rather a new idea, but there may be something in it.

This generation seems to master almost every human problem except balancing budgets.

Excessive taxes may kill the geese that lay the golden eggs.

Assignment: America . . . by Kenneth L. Dixon

WASHINGTON, March 19—This could be just a funny little story about community guilt conscience. Only it isn't.

I leave it to you what it is. It started a few weeks ago when I wrote a series of stories about the disgracefully low wages paid American public school teachers. They included examples where street cleaners, garbage collectors, janitors, ditchdiggers and yard men made more money than teachers.

Those stories stated that there were towns where many teachers had to turn to night work and week-end jobs to support their families. The many thousands of experienced teachers who were quitting, or had quit, the profession in order to survive, were mentioned.

So was the growing lack of respect for the teacher among parents and students, due to his or her economic inferiority in the community.

But no places or names were specifically mentioned in all that series.

Yet within a few days I was receiving a stream of letters, and each writer seemed to think I had been reporting conditions in his or her individual community.

Most of them agreed that the lack of teachers, the lowering of the teacher efficiency ratings, the poor educational conditions and the increasing disrespect for the teaching profession had definitely contributed to the juvenile delinquency in their communities.

Here in Washington, national educational association authorities agreed with their conclusions. They said the shortage of capable teachers, the crowded classrooms, the lack of playground equipment or supervision and the subsequent youthful disdain for all rules and authority had contributed greatly to juvenile delinquency.

In fact, some named those as major causes.

Then, one teacher wrote me there was another educational abuse just as deadly. She referred to what she termed the dictatorial powers granted school boards in many states.

Point by point, she cited cases of rank favoritism, graft, recognized nepotism, contract kick-backs, moral corruption evident even to the children, "unholy demands" on teachers, improper and even dangerous health and study conditions, and similar instances of sheer rottenness on the part of some school boards she had known—including the one for which she was working.

Obviously, pupils knew all about this situation and consequently ridiculed classroom rules and school authority. Thus, their first and most important step toward juvenile delinquency was taken down a pathway left open by their parents and other adults of the community—adults who did nothing to correct the situation.

I wrote that story, without naming the city or the teacher. Within 24 hours after it was printed, I was receiving long distance phone calls and telegrams. Within 48 hours, the first of the letters began to arrive.

Without exception, they either

asked a question, "was this our school board?" or stated flatly, "that is true here."

The questions I could answer honestly in the negative for, ironically, no one in the city about whom it was written has called, wired or written, although the story was published there. But to those admissions of local guilt, there was no answer.

There are results, of course. You can see them in the new national crime totals recently released by FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover. He's setting new records. Now we average nearly two murders, 20 assaults and 200 assorted robberies, burglaries, thefts and larcenies every hour. That's right, every hour!

And, lo, juvenile delinquents lead all the rest.

Furthermore, said Hoover, they're graduating from petty thievery to armed robbery, rape and murder.

You see the results in the Illinois adolescent who butchered at least three, including a baby, in the Maryland lad who slew his entire family, in the New York youngster who hanged his little playmate.

But those are results — not answers. The answers lie in the community homes and schools who must deal with the problem.

Certainly, however grimly, just it might have been, that was no answer the other night at Sing Sing when they led three boys, half insane with horror, to the electric chair.

As I said, this isn't a funny story.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, March 19—Mr. Truman did not seek any specific form of his proposed $400,000,000 aid to Greece and Turkey, so no one has been able to get a direct line on the idea—or the possible results. Not even the congressmen in charge of the legislation profess to be clear on the subject, and the other legislators have been sloshing around in a somewhat bewildered state. Certainly their ideas have not coalesced.

The truth is no one wants to make the loan, grant, trust fund, gift or whatever it finally is to be. This includes Republicans and Democrats, and all phases of the proposed venture including the diplomatic aspect of British policy. The Attlee government seems to wish to withdraw from world affairs, or at least withdraw its troops from same. Certainly it seems to wish to abandon the empire, but some officials say Britain only wishes to abandon its commitments in Greece, Palestine, Egypt, India and Burma while clinging to France and Germany. Whatever she is doing, no one knows, and there are grave doubts that either Mr. Attlee or Mr. Bevin does. But whatever it turns out to be is surely a weakening of the British end of the fight for democracy and individual freedom around the world.

Her foreign policy seems as confused as her domestic policy, and as little aimed to attain the results her government desires as her policy of reducing the work-week in the coal mines at a time when she needs coal production desperately. Private British reports suggest there is no chance of the confused British government arriving at any political clarity through a coalition administration or any point non-partisan patriotic effort, but that the socialist laborite government will last its five years in office. Even some sympathetic British government sources say their politicians can thank God for the snowstorms and blizzards which covered up the mistakes of the Attlee regime from the eyes of the people. In any event, congressmen actually do not seem to know much more about it than you do. Whence has come their reluctance and inquisitiveness. (Note—I am told the British sounded out this government officially on another loan for itself, and was told promptly public opinion in this country would not support another loan at this time.)

Uncertainty originates in those British facts, and spreads from there on. Officially there was no surprise at the British request that we take over her Greek commitments, at least in one sense. Last fall the Attlee government announced it would retire from Greece. The only thing new, apparently, is that she will withdraw economic aid. She intended to take her troop out anyway.

In this connection few authorities here think the administration's new dealers in Greece inspired or had much to do with the development of the Truman policy. Paul Porter (remember OPA?) has been the special economic envoy of the administration.

OUT-THINKING YOURSELF

DID YOU ever do too much thinking in a crucial spot? Did you ever see at once just what was the correct thing to do—then, after a bit of reflection, decide on some other move which turns out to be costly? Who hasn't? Sometimes the more or less obvious action will pay you dividends, whereas the carefully figured out maneuver is just about the worst course you could take.

So East led his diamond 2 to the second trick. West used his A, then knocked out the dummy's other diamond with the 7 to the Q. Now South brought the spade 2 to his J and West held up, playing the 9. Then South led the spade 5. West, on the spot, decided East had held the 7-3 and South only two spades, so came in with his A instead of holding up again. To avoid giving South a trick with the heart Q, he returned his diamond 5. South got the rest of the tricks then with Spades and clubs, making an extra.

This deal occurred in the recent national championship tournament for the Harold S. Vanderbilt Cup. Two very famous veterans were in the East-West seats when the bidding recorded occurred, and the North-South pair was a couple of lesser-known entrants who were straining for results—which accounts for South's unusual final bid.

West led the heart 6. East played the K, which won. We can easily see that a heart return would result in setting the contract three tricks. But East studied the dummy. He decided the spade suit was a dangerous threat. Counting South for only two spades—because with three he should support the rebid major—he placed four with West. So West might be able to stop the spade run if the diamond re-entry was removed first from the dummy.

DIET AND HEALTH

Recovering from Influenza May Be a Long, Slow Process

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

MANY health officers are today of the opinion that ere long influenza may again be on the rampage. That is why it is well for patients who have had an attack of influenza to realize that they cannot rush the business of getting well.

In the first place, they may not regain their full vitality at once. They are quite likely to experience such symptoms as pain here or there in the body, accompanied by tiredness and weakness which may last for some time. This condition is most likely to develop if the attack of influenza has been prolonged and the patient has been slow in recovering from it.

Other Symptoms
In addition to the symptoms mentioned, the patient may have frequent and recurrent attacks of sore throat and cough, night sweats, poor appetite, loss of weight, sleeplessness, tingling of the fingers and toes, and lack of energy.

According to Dr. Gordon G. Allison of Atlanta, Georgia, these symptoms may occur for as long a time as 6 to 20 months. On examination of the throat, it is often found that the roof of the mouth and the back part of the throat as well as the tonsils are red and swollen. In addition, there is some swelling of the lymph glands in the neck. The lymph glands at the root of the lung may also be enlarged as shown by X-ray plates.

Dr. Allison believes that the symptoms occur because the virus which produces influenza is still present in the body, particularly in the lymph glands, thus causing the pain in various parts of the body. Many of the patients develop anemia, or a lessening of the coloring in the blood. Such preparations as the sulfonamide drugs and penicillin do not seem to have any effect in this condition.

The treatment consists in keeping the patient at rest, particularly if there is fever. The application of heat may also help to relieve the pain. This can be done with hot, wet dressings, with an electric heat pad, or hot water bottle.

Another form of treatment which is used is to give an injection of some protein, such as boiled milk. This produces fever and eventually aids in overcoming the difficulty.

Dr. Allison also recommends the use of some preparation such as potassium iodide. Some iron-containing preparation may also be administered to overcome the anemia.

If the patient is not relieved by these measures, a mixture containing vitamin B-1 or thiamine and a local anesthetic or pain-relieving preparation is injected in and around the painful area. It has been found that if such injections have been carried out twice weekly for two weeks, the pain is lessened and the duration of the attack shortened to a great extent.

I have mentioned many times the danger of returning to normal activities too soon after an attack of influenza. A patient who has such a condition should remain in bed at complete rest until there has been no fever for at least 48 hours.

SYNOPSIS

Young Sherry Kent refuses to forego the pleasure of a weekend at the farm of Steve Jeffrey, being a family friend, even though her mother, Leda, and sister, Val, have changed their plans about going. Leda, attractive widow and highly successful business woman, is dining with Roger Bedloe, vice-president of her firm, and Val with wealthy Wade Carrington, with whom she is trying to forget her heartbreak over the death in action of her fiancé, Rick Colby. Val is tormented by the knowledge that had it not been for Leda's opposition, she and Rick would have married before he went overseas. Alighting from the train at Brundage, Sherry spies Steve's station wagon parked nearby and climbs in to wait for him. To her surprise, attractive Lex Morell, who introduces himself as Steve's hired man, takes the wheel. Lex had been in the brokerage business before the war, and upon his release from the Army he decided to get some practical experience before investing in a farm of his own. Warm-hearted, elderly Aunt Pen, who keeps house for Steve, greets Sherry joyously. Later, when Steve arrived, and all had consumed Aunt Pen's delicious dinner, a strange feeling of happiness stole over Sherry. She knew instantly her meeting with Lex was responsible. Her happiness is short-lived, however, when Steve tells her Lex is engaged to be married. Lex was troubled, Steve added, because his fiancée was opposed to him buying the farm. During the night Sherry hears Lex padding the door and knocks on his door to invite him down to the kitchen for a snack. She tells him of her concern over Val.

CHAPTER TEN

"IM TWENTY," Sherry told Lex. "Old enough to know people don't always live happily ever after." She sobered then. "But—still think what Val and Rick had would have lasted. Val is so—so lost now. Sometimes I worry about her." Sherry broke off, a little smile curving her mouth. "Hey, something's wrong with this conversation. I start out asking about your troubles, and I end by telling you mine."

Lex smiled, too. "What makes you think I have troubles?"

"People who can't sleep usually do."

"Usually I do sleep," Lex assured her. "Why shouldn't I? I'm doing work I like, living in a place I love, and I have a friend who's as good as Steve Jeffrey."

"I know," Sherry said. "Steve's a very swell guy."

She thought: Okay, so don't tell me about it. I know it isn't any of my business. But someday you'll talk to me, Lex, because we're going to be friends. I feel more certain of it than ever now. Someday, I shouldn't be surprised if you told me all about your girl and how you can't seem to work things out between you. Maybe you'll even ask my advice—

"Good Lord!" Lex exclaimed. "It's after two o'clock."

"Is it?"

Sherry got up and stacked their empty cups and saucers in the sink, ran water into the saucepan she had used.

"You know something?" Lex asked, getting to his feet, too. He sounded a little surprised about it. "I'm sleepy."

"That," Sherry laughed, "was the idea. Remember?"

"Yeah," Lex said. "Well, thanks, Sherry."

"Don't mention it. I enjoyed it, too."

Sherry switched off the light and they made their way upstairs quietly. Lex was yawning as they whispered good night in the hallway. Sherry felt sure he'd sleep now. But she lay awake for a long time, thinking . . .

Val Kent dressed as though driven by demons. Finally she surveyed herself in the long mirror on her closet door and found the result satisfactory. The pale gilt of her hair was brushed into a soft chignon low on her white neck. Her hat was little more than a dramatic swirl of coque feathers against one cheek. Her plain black dress, infinitely smart with its brief sleeves and peplum, was equally right for cocktails now and dinner with Wade later. Hose almost invisibly sheer, very high heeled pumps. This was the way Wade liked her—it was a Val Rick Colby had never known. Perhaps that was why she was so fond of Wade, so intrigued with him. She dressed a part for her dates with him, she made herself clever and amusing, somewhat shocking, submerging her personality in the love of someone altogether different, someone very gay, very outrageous, a little mad.

With Wade she escaped from herself, which was what she wanted to do.

Val didn't bother to phone Susan Pyle. There would be a crowd swarming in Susan's apartment downstairs, shrieking with laughter, talking like mad, drinking and smoking and making love. Val caught up long suede gloves, her great squashy purse with the heavy gold clasp that matched her bracelets, her platinum fox jacket. She escaped from the emptiness of the apartment that seemed to reach out after her like clutching hands, rang for an elevator in the outer hall. A few minutes later Susan's mulatto maid was admitting her and the sound of voices and laughter came out to meet her in a tide of welcome.

"Hello, darlings," Val called, seeing a half dozen familiar faces as she stood in the doorway. "Room for one more?"

There was always room for one more at Susan's. The gay noisy group absorbed Val. Susan Pyle, so perfectly groomed, as always, that her dark smartness passed for beauty, was wearing a garnet velvet housegown and exotic gold bracelets. Her blue-black hair, straight and shining, crowned her head in a thick braid. Standing within the ardent circle of a masculine arm, she lifted a languid hand at Val in greeting, said in her odd, hoarse voice, "Hello, pet— you look divine. Get her a drink, someone," and considered her duties as hostess accomplished.

Val considered their accomplishment, too. She and Susan understood each other too well, were too good friends, to stand on formalty. She took the tall glass someone proffered her, sat on a divan between two amiable cronies and proceeded to forget, in trivial talk and laughter, her jittery of a little while before. A drink had been what she needed—and people around, always people—

Beyond the windows, hidden by Venetian blinds and heavy gold-toned draperies, the dusk deepened from gray to black and pale winter stars came out. But within the warmth and light were constant, although the crowd shifted a good deal. People left and others, equally convivial, arrived to take their places. Val took time out to phone Wade Carrington's apartment and suggest he call for her at Susan's place instead of her own. At a few minutes before seven he arrived. And Val set aside her drink and smiled, her heart quickening with excitement and pleasure, as Wade's dark glance swept the crowded, smoky room in obvious and eager search of her.

Wade Carrington was forty, of average height and compactly built, with a look of muscular power in his broad shoulders and tapering hips. He was possessed of a strong physical magnetism, compounded of vital good health and high spirits, that was very attractive, particularly to women. He was dark of complexion, dark eyes and hair, with a tiny brush of gray at the temples that only increased his mature good looks. He had enough assurance to get away with almost any course of conduct, however outrageous, a great deal of inherited money and very little moral sense. He had been married three times and three times divorced and all his wives were very beautiful women. Beauty drew him like a magnet. And he had told Val, more times than she could remember during the three months since they had met, that she was the most beautiful girl he had ever known and that he was mad about her.

When their glances met, Wade smiled, too, and came quickly toward Val. He spoke to Susan, to several others, without letting himself be delayed or deflected from his course. Reaching the spot where Val stood, he took her two hands in his and for a long moment let his gaze rest on her face. His look was as deep and warm as a caress and Val felt the heady thrill of it through her whole body.

Wade said, "How lovely you look—but then, you always look lovely."

Val thanked him with a smile. Casual talk sprang up around them, including them both in the easy give and take of trivial conversation. Someone put a drink into Wade's hand. But when he had finished it, Val felt the insistent pressure of his fingers on her elbow.

"Let's duck this, shall we?" She nodded and they moved across the room to bid Susan goodbye.

"Leaving already?" she asked huskily, a wicked gleam in her dark eyes. "Well, have fun, pet."

Large Crowd Sees Girl Scout 'Style Parade'

Spring Fashions Are Modeled In Parish House

"Style Parade" presented by Girl Scouts of Troop No. 8 in the parish house of St. Philip's church Tuesday evening was an outstanding event of the Spring season. The room was filled to capacity, and was well received by the many guests that attended the "Parade".

"Spring Style Parade" was planned in cooperation with the following merchants of Circleville, Smith's, Stiffler's, Penny's, Joffe's, Murphy's, Grant's, Miller-Jones shoe shop and the Economy shoe shop. Spring suits predominated the Spring wardrobes for the junior-miss and woman's styles, tiny children's clothes were all modeled by the girls, who selected their models from members of their own Scout and Brownie troops. In evidence were plaid dresses, with puffed sleeves, and the new bustle back. New 'shortie' coats with belted backs were modeled over soft wool frocks, or sheer crepe and gabardines. Calfskin, faille, and soft fabric bags which fashion the pouch or under arm bag, and the decidedly smart Easter fests, straw and calot hats in many novel and tricky styles were worn. Some suits were tailored, in small pin-checks, others in plain fabrics, and not as severely tailored. Lavishly pleated skirts with bright box jackets, always the favorite of the junior-miss, were presented, along with the cut-away couplet. Gowns designed on simple lines, some revealing the new graceful drapes, were modeled with new costume jewelry, and bako hats. Many cottons were shown with the drawing neckline, some with the peter-pan collars, and others typical shirt-makers, all with a youthful air and smart to the last degree. Gloves and shoes modeled were of the latest fabrics and cuts.

Mrs. Collis Young was assisted by Miss Doris Schreiner and Miss Ann Curtin, and they introduced each model as she appeared on the stage. Girls that originated the Style Parade and participated in the review included Elaine Baker, Jackie Eitel, Jean Hall, Jean Harrington, Wanda Young, Corrine Lovenshimer, Patsy Quinzel, Jeanne Spangler and Rosemary Stonerock. Leaders of the group are Mrs. Robert Brehmer Jr., Mrs. Young and Mrs. Tom Bennett.

Models that participated in Tuesday's parade included, Carol Lynn Heiskell, Cynthia Pace, Judy Routzahn, Ann Adkins, Sally Cochran, Penny Young, Shirley Dunlap, Sally Eshelman, Carol Leist, Nancy Ann Barnhill, Suzanne Grant, Judy Barnhill, Frances Heiskell, Margaret Ann Green, Beverly Reid, Judy Goeller, Sandy McAlister, Jacquie Turner, Marlene Steele, Jackie Smith, Sharon Newman, Susan Stocklen, Dotty Renick, Jean Heine and Leva Grant; Mrs. Bennett, Mrs. George Speakman, Mrs. C. W. Hedges and Mrs. Enid Bingham.

At the conclusion of the Style Parade, tea and refreshments were served, with Mrs. William D. Radcliff and Miss Margaret Rooney presiding at the beautifully appointed tea table. Various blooming plants were used to decorate the room and stage. Musical program was presented, when Miss Anna Schleyer offered for her piano solo, "Faun" by Chaminade, and "Nocturne" by Chopin. Mrs. Vaden Couch in her vocal solo presented "The Easter Parade", accompanied at the piano by Miss Curtin. In conclusion the "Star Spangled Banner" was sung by the entire assembly. A silver offering was taken.

Miss Jewell Speaks On 'Zane's Trace' For DAR

Mrs. W. L. Mack, vice-regent, presided at the meeting of Pickaway Plains chapter Daughters of the American Revolution, held Tuesday evening in the social rooms of the Presbyterian church. Mrs. Mack was in charge of the meeting due to the illness of Mrs. Charles Pugsley, regent, and Mrs. Martin Cromley, vice-regent.

Meeting opened with the group joining in singing "The Star Spangled Banner". Mrs. Christian Schwartz, chaplain, assisted by Mrs. Mack conducted the ritualistic service and Mrs. R. Bales led the salute to the flag. Mrs. Orion King served as recorder in the absence of Mrs. Donald H. Watt, recording secretary. Miss Alice Ada May, treasurer, read letters from the Circleville and Pickaway county Girl Scout associations, the Hillside school, Marlborough, Massachusetts, and the Kate Duncan Smith DAR school, Grant Alabama, thanking the Pickaway Plains chapter for contributions, gifts and services received by them. Mrs. Clark Hunsicker and Mrs. King, delegates, gave reports of the state DAR conference held in Columbus, March 12 through 14th. Mrs. Hunsicker gave her special report as state chairman of the DAR student loan fund. Mrs. Arthur Wagar sang, "Sonny Boy" by Pearl Curran and "Love is All" by Tobias and Tomlin, accompanied by Miss Abbe Mills Clarke.

MRS. WALTER KINDLER, program chairman for the evening, presented Miss Elsie Jewell who gave an interesting and informative paper on "Zane's Trace". She told, "that because Ohio river travel, a century and a half ago, was precarious with sand bars, snags, ice and low water, pioneers that rolled Westward in wagons needed a road on which to travel. In 1796 congress commissioned Ebenezer

Zane to open a passageway across Ohio, linking Kentucky with Washington. It began at Wheeling and ended at the tiny village of Aberdeen, Ohio, across the Ohio river from Maysville, Kentucky.

"Zane's Trace it was called, which followed a mere bridge trail used by buffalo, deer and Indians through the Ohio wilderness. It is virtually impossible to establish today the exact route of the original trace for Zane never gave congress the promised map, and early wagoners cut changes to suit their heavy vehicles. Zane's Trace was a boon to the entire territory. No other 221 miles in American history can boast of so much history and romance. Such places as Zanesville, Lancaster, Amanda, Tarlton, Kingston, Kinnikinnick and Hopetown were founded along the trail. A tavern recommended by stage drivers was that kept by the Nyes of Tarlton. Here in later years Henry Clay and Andrew Jackson were frequent guests. Kingston was a stopping place and the inn was kept by Thomas Ing."

"Truly Zane's Trace opened up the Ohio country," said Miss Jewell, in concluding her discussion, "and the South and West for pioneers, commerce and ex-

tion to Greece, but he was not even called back for consultation until long after Mr. Truman had decided to act.

Also his standing at the state department is reputedly not the highest. Another new deal editor, Mark Ethridge, is in Greece for UN studying guerilla warfare prospects, which are at the root of the situation because the Russians are supposed to have armed the guerillas for a Spring campaign to overthrow the government. Indeed, unverifiable rumor has reached official quarters that some of our own lend-lease material is now arming the guerillas. We shipped this stuff to Yugoslavia, and Tito and Yugoslavia sent the material on to the guerillas. At any rate, this nation has had a star-studded new deal cast at the top in Greece. But inside information here suggests its influence is far from important. One quasi-official report suggests, indeed, that Porter wrote a letter to a senator demanding that we change our Greek policy to that of the Russians, favoring overthrow of King George. If he did this, his popularity would be ended on the inside here.

All this adds to congressional lack of clarity — except perhaps on one phase. Everyone recognizes Greece needs help and wants to give it. Yet in this unanimous desire, the congressmen are in a somewhat nebulous state. Reporters covering the hearings in both houses heard no figures produced as to how much relief is already being given Greece by us. A Greek relief society has been actively soliciting funds. The churches are conducting a campaign throughout this country for relief, supplanting their campaign of last year.

These voluntary efforts to aid the Greeks has met wholehearted response throughout the nation and must have done much good, yet no one mentioned this in the hearings. The reports, covering same, say Greece was occupied by both Italians and Nazis during the war and her industries were destroyed, so she needs economic help. All apparently took this situation for granted and no detailed understanding of the actual current situation was developed anywhere. (This subject will be concluded in a later column.)

Opinions expressed by the writer in the column are the views of the author and not necessarily those of the Circleville Herald.

ECONOMIC CRISIS IN CHINA

Peace in Strife-Torn Nation Largely Up to U. S.

WAR WAIFS—UNRRA food for children in strife-torn Chinese area.

By FREDERICK J. LIPP

Central Press Correspondent
WASHINGTON—The growing economic tension in China, caused by civil war strains, has become, within the past weeks, an acute crisis, one which again reveals the nature of the reactionary one-party rule of the Kuomintang.

All private transactions in gold and foreign currencies have been banned. Private foreign exchange deposits must be put at the disposal of the government. Strikes and lockouts are forbidden. The dreaded secret police have received added powers to administer "justice" for infractions.

This tightening of Kuomintang economic measures appears to be largely an effort to meet conditions for a 500 million-dollar United States loan, without which the government cannot continue the civil war.

While necessary, the maneuver is unlikely to solve the conditions which have brought the crisis to a head. It merely serves to bring to light the dependence of the Chiang government upon United States aid.

Army Is Costly

The roots of the present impasse lie in the political, military and economic structure of the Kuomintang. The Chiang Kai-shek government maintains an army of three million men, the support of which costs the people 200 billion Chinese dollars a month—excluding operating expenses which are calculated at another three billion.

Government administrative costs plus the Kuomintang party machine expenses, which are paid from the national treasury, are estimated at 300 to 400 billion dollars a month. The Chiang government, therefore, is faced with the necessity of raising approximately one trillion (that's 1,000,000,000) Chinese dollars a month for expenditures of all kinds.

According to the estimate of a brilliant Chinese economist, in September, 1946, government income, exclusive of internal taxes, amounted, roughly, to 175 billion dollars—not even 20 per cent of Chiang's needs. Where, then, did the remainder come from?

To supply his army Chiang restored the war-time system of tax payments in kind. To replenish its manpower he restored the conscription system. The net result of these measures was to cancel each other out.

To escape conscription, peasants fled to the cities, thus decreasing the already low production of the Chinese farm and making it relatively impossible to collect more than a fraction of taxes from the impoverished farmer.

In 1946 he collected only 2.5 per cent of taxes in kind. Observers feel that the 1947 showing will be even worse. The discrepancy is serious for Chiang. It means that he must buy on the open market to meet the needs of army and government expenses. And for this more cash is needed.

To meet the huge deficit in the past, Chiang took the easy way out and printed more paper money. In 1938 an extra two billion, 300 million dollars was put into circulation. In 1946—four trillion 250 billion!

The resultant inflation, through the years, has finally effected a breakdown in economy, in which neither farm nor factory can function properly.

According to the liberal Shanghai daily, The Wen Hui Pao, dated Dec. 22, 1946, over 1,600 factories and commercial concerns had closed down in that city alone during the last quarter of the year.

In inland China the situation was no better. During the summer of 1946 it is estimated that industrial firms were closing down in Hankow at the rate of one every two days. In October the average was up to 23 a day! In Chungking, 3,000 large and 4,000 small commercial firms went bankrupt during the autumn of '46.

A subsidiary cause of this commercial and industrial collapse was the constant flooding of the Chinese market with American goods. More than 70 per cent of its foreign trade deficit, from January to October, 1946, was for goods from the United States.

Among other remedial steps taken by Chiang in the past was the granting of loans to industrial and commercial concerns by government banks at low rates of interest.

In practice, however, only firms owned and controlled by high government officials were able to obtain such loans.

Ordinary businessmen without the "proper" connections were unable to secure them without paying as much as 70 per cent and 80 per cent bribes and government interest charges. Another of Chiang's measures was government operation of industry and commerce—now declared abandoned.

Under this system the Kuomintang set up companies to carry on industries—such as textiles. It then forced the peasants to sell cotton at a low price.

The finished product was then sold to "private" concerns at prices well below the black market. These firms in turn sold to the consumer at unrestricted prices.

Four Families in Control
Export licenses and export subsidies were handled in the same way. The "private" concerns which reaped the profit of all such ventures were invariably controlled or owned outright by China's four great families—the Chiangs, Soongs, Kungs and Chens—the same families which dominate the government.

Kuomintang economy through the years has gradually become centralized in the Four Families. Through cold-blooded speculation at the expense of the people, through their virtual control of Chinese banking, commerce and industry the Four Families have been able to maintain a careful and absolute dictatorship over a large part of the nation.

They have, moreover, profited hugely from the civil war through bond issues, currency manipulation and by buying out remaining smaller competitors who cannot stand the inflationary strain. But the civil war is gradually throwing China into a general bankruptcy. The old measures utilized in the past are no longer effective in stemming the crisis.

Chiang's last desperate hope is to postpone the breaking point by getting United States assistance. Peasant revolts have grown alarmingly through the latter part of '46 and in these early months of 1947.

Unless conditions change, these revolts will ultimately coalesce into a unified national impulse capable of overthrowing the Kuomintang.

Other Changes Scheduled

In addition to the previously mentioned steps taken by Chiang to meet United States conditions for a loan, the following are also reported:

1—A decision by the government to get out of industry. This means, in effect, a selling of government operated factories to private interests—these interests, of course, being none other than the present owners of affiliates of the Four Families.

2—Rigid governmental economy with new teeth for tax collecting.

3—A 500 million dollar import program—despite the fact that the influx of American goods has already paralyzed domestic production, and

4—A "campaign" against hoarders and speculators, which cannot be expected to become too harsh—since the chief speculators and hoarders are members of the government.

Unable to initiate real reforms to meet its economic crisis, the Kuomintang, for self-survival must push the civil war policy as long as the resources for it exist. If it is unable to secure a United States loan or other financial assistance, it will be forced to abandon this policy. If the loan is obtained, the dictatorship of Chiang Kai-shek will not only be maintained but, in the course of the ensuing war, possibly be extended across the entire nation.

The decision is largely ours. We are already committed to withdrawing from mediation in China. If we, further, discontinue all loans and other aid the Kuomintang will either be forced to a crisis which it will be unable to meet without radically changing its structure, or the Chiang regime will collapse finally and leave the way clear for a democratic coalition government. Either result would set up a basis for a free, healthy and representative state for the people of China.

Council Studies Abandonment Of City Fire Alarm System

PLEA TO HELP HOUSING HERE MADE BY VET

Guarantee Of Valuation Of Property Remaining Same Proposed

Proposal of abandonment of Circleville's old and badly crippled fire alarm system, and a plea to provide more housing by assuring a no-increased-valuation for 10 years to property owners who desire to convert single dwellings into duplexes, were considered by the city council Tuesday night.

Although the suggestion of discarding the fire alarm system was discussed at length the council took no definite action. The five members present agreed to postpone action until the next regular session scheduled for April 1. In the meantime, council members will attempt to ascertain public sentiment on the question.

Discussion of the matter began when Councilman George L. Crites declared the alarm system should be either repaired or abandoned. Councilman Ray Anderson offered a motion to refer it to the safety committee.

Fire Chief Talmer Wise told council the present situation was dangerous and that something should be done. It was pointed out during the round-the-room discussion that the question has been before council for a year. Finally Councilman Crites said he favored abandonment of the system.

COUNCILMAN Ray Cook, who was selected to serve as chairman in the absence of Councilman William M. Reid, president pro tem, suggested deferring action until the next meeting.

As the lone defender of the alarm system Councilman Boyd Horn at this point arose and said he was opposed to abandonment. He said that what the "people want" is more alarm boxes in proper working condition. He added that "if this council votes to abandon the alarm system we will probably have to sneak down alleys in order to get home."

The proposal aimed to lessen the housing shortage was made to council by John Robinson, a Navy veteran and operator of the Ringgold Dairy, who attended the meeting as a spectator.

ASSERTING that Circleville's housing situation is very bad Robinson urged council to take appropriate action.

"Building and remodeling of houses are being retarded", Robinson told council, "because many property owners fear higher property valuations with higher taxes to pay."

Robinson suggested that such property owners be given a guarantee that the valuations of properties remodeled into duplexes to provide more housing will not be increased for a period of at least 10 years. If this were done, he declared, many single dwellings in Circleville would be made into duplexes.

Mayor Ben. H. Gordon told council that in his opinion it had no authority to give such a guarantee to property owners and that the matter of fixing valuations was up to the Pickaway county budget committee. Council took no action on Robinson's proposal.

ATTORNEY Joseph Adkins, special counsel for the city in its dispute with the Ohio Water Service company, officially informed council that the water controversy was ended Tuesday although several minor "tag ends" mostly involving expenses remain to be cleared up. He suggested appointment of a committee to meet with Attorney Tom A. Renick, Attorney Adkins, City Solicitor George Gerhardt, and Utilities Manager Irvin Leist relative to taking care of the remaining details. It was explained that the city owes minor sums for engineering and legal services, advertising, bonding company fees, etc., and that payment can be made from a reserve fund of $40,000 which has been kept intact.

Council voted unanimously to attend the conference, to be held next week, as a committee of the whole.

An offer from the J. H. Butts company, Chillicothe, to install two new overhead doors, 10 by 10 feet, at the fire station on East Franklin street, at a cost of $652 for materials and labor, was referred to the safety committee and service committee with instructions to report at the April meeting of council. This action was by unanimous vote after Councilman Crites said he thought the price was too high.

Councilman Anderson said city firemen need linoleum and chairs at the fire station and that the total cost has been calculated at $70. Council directed Solicitor Gerhardt to draft the necessary legislation for presentation at the next council session.

CITY TREASURY balance is $69,019.83 according to a financial report covering the first 18 days of March and submitted by Councilman Crites as chairman of the finance committee. ## THREE FILMS ON 'FAMILY NIGHT' AT EUB CHURCH

Lenten "Family Night" service of the First Evangelical United Brethren church, East Main street, will be held Thursday night, beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

Opening the program Sol Hoopii, a native Hawaiian, will present a gospel hymn film, "Musical Moments with Sol Hoopii". Hawaiian instruments will be used in this film.

Devotions will be in charge of the Willing Workers and the Philathea Sunday school classes. Children from the primary department will usher.

Special juvenile film of the program will be the parable of Jesus, "The Door to Heaven." This story portrays the truth that there is only one way for man to enter the kingdom of God and that is through Jesus Christ.

Feature of the evening is the third episode in the life of St. Paul entitled, "Faith Triumphant". This story, lifted from Acts 21:26-32, is the portrayal of St. Paul's arrest at Jerusalem and his imprisonment in Caesarea.

Closing the program Jesus' parable adapted from St. Luke 10:25-37, "The Good Samaritan", will be shown.

At the close of the service, the pastor, the Rev. Carl L. Wilson, extends an invitation for special
